Trekkers Offered Transportation If They Will Return

Group of 380 Men At Kenora, Ont., Given Opportunity to Go Back to Winnipeg.
Men Near Oshawa Hear Toronto Offer

Kenora, Ont., July 19.—Three hundred and eighty relief camp strikers from Manitoba were offered free transportation back to Winnipeg to-day and told that after 2 o'clock this afternoon, no more free meals or accommodation would be provided.
From that time on, said a pamphlet signed by Mayor T. McClellan and distributed among the men after breakfast, the strikers would be treated as ordinary transients. Such men are allowed to stay in Kenora only two days.
This means the 250 men who arrived here Wednesday afternoon must fare for themselves. The second contingent that walked from the Manitoba border yesterday will have until to-morrow.
GOVERNMENT AID
The offer of free transportation was made by the council after it had been empowered to do so by the Ontario Government.
After the 2 p.m. deadline no assistance of any kind would be given strikers unless the transportation offer was accepted, the mayor's statement said. If the offer was taken up, present arrangements would continue until the transportation became available.
Before breakfast this morning the men voted unanimously to continue the march to the head of the Great Lakes as soon as possible. There, they said, they hoped to pick up additional followers to travel to Ottawa and protest camp conditions.
A meeting was called for later in the day to consider the transportation offer.

POLE FLIGHT TO END AT OAKLAND

Associated Press
San Francisco, July 19.—The Soviet "mystery plane" which is scheduled to take off from Moscow on a 6,000-mile non-stop flight over the North Pole, and across Canada's Northwest Territories and B.C. by way of Vancouver, is scheduled to land at Oakland and not San Francisco, the Russian consul-general here notified Mayor William H. McCracken of Oakland to-day.
M. G. Galkovitch wired the mayor for formal permission to land at the Oakland airport and said the mystery ship was expected to arrive "some time before next Thursday." The single-engine plane, details of which Soviet air officials have been loath to divulge, would be manned by a crew of three, Galkovitch said. Sigmund Levanitsky would be in command, assisted by Elay Dakos and Les Chenko.

Ethiopians Rally At Emperor's Call

Tribal Leaders Cheer As New Patriotic Society Is Formed at Addis Ababa; War Is Certain, Italians Believe.
Associated Press
Addis Ababa, July 19.—Emperor Haile Selassie's militant call to his people to defend Ethiopia's independence "to the death" aroused fervent demonstrations of enthusiasm to-day.
Cheers and cries of the almost fanatical tribal warriors resounded in Menelik Square, where leaders from all classes of life organized a new patriotic society. It is called "Amour pour la Patrie" (love for the country) in response to

OIL LANDS IN B.C. RESERVED

Many Sections of Province Covered By Provincial Policy
Under the provincial government's policy of reserving coal and petroleum lands to prevent exploitation and speculation, practically all unskated land in the supposed oil areas of the province have been reserved, Hon. A. Wells Gray, Minister of Lands, said to-day.
The first district to come under reserve is the Similkameen. Besides this the Lower Fraser Valley from Hope westward and from the river south to the boundary, the entire Peace River section, the Flathead country in southeast Kootenay, and the Cariboo section are set aside.
While the government has not made a direct move to take up oil boring on its own, the reserve policy will permit the government to take advantage in any area where oil may be struck, the minister said.
When the province was open to untroubled staking, he said, it often happened that as soon as interests with the intention of developing oil prospects began work, others would stake alongside for purely speculative purposes, thus preventing possible development by still other groups.
Three sections are under development at present, the most active being in the Flatheads, where drills are down about 4,000 feet. In the Cariboo and at Boundary Bay extensive work was done.

RELIEF MEN REFUSE WORK

Windsor, Ont., Police Commission Provides Guards For Any Willing to Work
Canadian Press
Windsor, Ont., July 19.—While 300 unemployed men milled around Wood yard here, refusing to work, the police commission, in emergency session, decided to-day to provide police protection for relief recipients, waiting to work. Mayor George Bennett voted against the measure.
Judge J. J. Coughlin, chairman of the commission, called the meeting after Acting Police Chief Frank Cade had informed him Mayor Bennett had issued an order removing police from the wood yard. At the meeting Mayor Bennett denied he had issued the order, stating he had prefaced his wish to have the officers removed with the qualification "if I had the power."
Mayor Bennett maintained that city police should not be employed to assist men who wished to go to work at the wood yard, because the city council had gone on record as being opposed to men working for relief orders.

JAPAN NAVY IN WAR GAMES

Manoeuvres Starting Now Will Continue Till October
Associated Press
Tokyo, July 19.—The Navy Office announced to-day the preliminary phases of the Japanese navy's annual grand manoeuvres will begin to-morrow and will continue until early October.
Although the announcement, the first official statement concerning the war games, did not mention their locale, it was understood authoritatively the final phase will be carried out in a wide area of the northwest Pacific between Japan proper and the Kurile Islands.
Authoritative sources said, however, this phase, beginning in late September and ending with major battle operations, would be confined to seas well to the west of the 180th meridian (which for the most part coincides with the international date line).
TEST OF DEFENCES
Vernacular newspapers have interpreted the war games as a test of the empire's defences against any attack from the northwest Pacific, stressing

Contract For Work On Freighter Goes To Victoria Firm

Victoria Machinery Depot This Morning Awarded $28,000 Repair Job On King Egbert, Damaged in Collision With Niagara.
The contract for the repairs to the British freighter King Egbert damaged in collision with the Canadian-Australasian liner Niagara in the Strait of Juan de Fuca on Wednesday night was awarded this morning to the Victoria Machinery Depot.
The value of the contract is $28,000, and the job will take three weeks. Work will get under way immediately.
Three companies, two in this city and one on the mainland, put in bids for the contract. Yarrow's Limited and the Burrard Drydock Company of Vancouver were the other tenderers.
With the work on the King Egbert and the job on the Niagara which has already been started by Yarrow's Limited, Victoria marine workers have a busy time ahead of them.
LINERS HOLDS "AREED"
Meanwhile Nos. 1 and 2 holds of the Ss. Niagara have been cleared of cargo to permit a "see examination" of the hull. It is understood that surveyors have found that the vessel took practically no water following the collision.
The Niagara was still alongside Ribbet's No. 2 Pier this afternoon. She will probably shift to Equilmait this evening, and is expected to be floated into the Dominion Government Drydock to-morrow morning. R.M.S. Empress of Russia is in the drydock to-day for her annual overhaul and repainting.

OPEN COURT RULING ASKED

Privy Council Hears Argument Alberta Divorce Given Secretly
By GEORGE HAMILTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
London, July 19.—Counsel delved into the murky history of the days of the Stuart when the appeal of the first Mrs. McPherson, seeking to nullify the decree of divorce granted her husband, O. L. McPherson, continued to-day before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.
The appeal is from a decision of the Supreme Court of Alberta, which dismissed her action to set aside the decree granted the former Alberta Minister of Public Works in 1931. The appellant contends the decree was not granted in proper public court.
Should the Privy Council find Mr. Justice Tweedie, who granted the decree, did not act "in open court," the decree granted is invalid. Mr. McPherson charged adultery with Leroy Mattern, whose wife he subsequently married.

Heat Wave To-day In Great Lakes Area

Beach Babies
Toronto, July 19.—Ontario and Quebec sweltered in a new heat wave to-day following the hottest night of the summer.
Temperatures in most centres were in the mid-eighties at noon, and indications were the mercury would pass 90 degrees before the day closed. High humidity made the heat seem more intense.
Montreal was the hottest spot in Canada last night with a temperature of 72 degrees. Toronto and Kingston reported minimum temperatures of 70 degrees, and hundreds slept out of doors to escape the heat.
Under a clear sky to-day temperatures soared rapidly.
At Kitchener, the thermometer stood at 88 degrees early in the day. It was 90 at Barrie, yesterday and continued hot to-day.
With the exception of Montreal, which reported a temperature of 76 degrees early to-day, eastern Quebec and the Maritimes were comparatively cool. It was 72 in Quebec city and 56 in Saint John.
It was warm on the prairies, but cooler than the east.

The leader of the Reconstructionists will return to Ottawa Sunday and remain here for a few days before leaving on a speaking tour of the west.

PREMIER BUSY
Premier R. B. Bennett has not named the time he will open the Conservative campaign. There was another meeting of the cabinet to-day, when the trade negotiations with Japan were discussed as well as appointments and a clean-up of other business. It is understood the Prime Minister plans to leave during the week-end for a brief holiday and after his return the election date will be announced and the government campaign will start.

THRONE MOVE SPLITS GREECE

Wild rumors pervaded the city, but political circles said it was unlikely there would be an attempt at a royalist coup d'etat.
An authoritative source said Mayor Kotlaas was en route to London with a message from the Premier to former King George asserting the movement for a monarchy restoration was finding an unfavorable response in republican Greece.

Japan Trade Bar On Canada To-morrow

Imperial Edict Will Be Issued Putting on 50 Per Cent Surtax on Ten Commodities.
Canadian Press
Tokyo, July 19.—The Foreign Office announced to-day an imperial edict will be issued to-morrow invoking Japan's trade protection law against Canada.
The law will impose a 50 per cent surtax on ten imports from Canada, including lumber, pulp and wheat. The Japanese Government has charged Canada discriminates unfairly against Japan and these steps were taken in retaliation.
In addition to lumber and wheat, imports to which the surtax will apply include wheat flour, wheat starch, pulp and felts for papermaking, packing paper, match paper and gluten.
Goods stored in bond are exempt.
The Foreign Office spokesman made a lengthy statement reiterating reasons for the action.
The surtax would be effective for twelve months.

Lively Scenes Attend Mass Protest In French Capital Against Salary and Pension Cuts.

Mounted Policemen Drive Crowds Along

Paris, July 19.—Flying squads of police smashed into demonstrators in the Place de l'Opera to-day. A number of men were struck down.
The fighting suddenly became general all around the opera as police tried to stop a big demonstration against salary and pension cuts.
The demonstrators chanted "Our Salaries!" and the rhythm of the chant alternated with the words of the communist hymn, "Internationale," on all sides of the famous square.
Leading agitators were arrested by the police, augmented by mobile guards, who moved in to quench the demonstration, which the government had banned. A number of women were among those arrested.
The mounted guards, shortly after 2:30 p.m., began trotting their horses in a circle back of the opera, the hoofs of their mounts steadily forcing the crowd to retreat.
Police, in flying wedge formation, drove into the spectators on foot, captured agitators, and pulled them out.
WOMEN SCREAM
Actual fighting began at about 7 p.m. Women yelled from windows. Working girls, homebound after their day in the shops, were caught in the crowd and screamed with fright.
Some of these girls were seen running aimlessly in efforts to escape from the opposing forces of demonstrators and police.
Hundreds of persons were arrested in the continuous series of police dashes into the crowds. Every pair of policemen or guards who went into a mass of humanity came out with a prisoner.
The big proportion of the members of the crowd offered no resistance, merely shouting against the governmental decrees, singing the "Internationale," and retreating when the police charged.

Two waterfront workers reported they were attacked by pickets, but escaped.
Another worker notified police that a window in his home had been smashed and numerous reports were received of other workers being threatened.

FORMER CHIEF IS ACQUITTED

J. Cameron, J. Celona and L. Barrack Not Guilty Of Conspiracy
Canadian Press
Vancouver, July 19.—Ex-Chief of Police John Cameron, Joe Celona and Lou Barrack, charged with conspiracy to defeat the ends of justice in the administration of law in Vancouver, were acquitted by Judge J. C. McIntosh in county court late yesterday. It was the conclusion of a long drawn out trial, marked by many adjournments. The prosecution was launched last April.
His honor decided the evidence did not disclose an agreement among the accused, such as had been alleged by the crown, and he found the crown had failed to prove the charge.
"I find you not guilty," he said.
The verdict was preceded by a summation of the evidence by defence counsel.

ported from Canada indicated the six months' negotiations over Japanese protests against alleged trade discriminations in this country had broken down. An official statement from the government was expected later.

CONCESSIONS OFFERED

In recent weeks the government has been in constant communication with Tokyo in an effort to satisfy the Japanese objections to application of the currency dump against imports. But so far as could be learned offers of the most generous concessions, involving important changes in Canada's dump duties which have been in effect for years and which would have to apply equally to other countries, have been met with an arbitrary demand for complete abolition of the duty.

An export trade worth about $17,000,000 in the last fiscal year is enjoyed almost exclusively by British Columbia, chiefly in lumber. Canada bought about $4,500,000 worth from Japan in the same period.

CLOSING ARGUMENTS

Gordon S. Wismer, M.P.P., counsel with T. P. Hurley for Cameron, spoke for the latter. C. L. McAlpine for Barrack, and Stuart Henderson for Celona, Dugald Donaghy, K.C., counsel with W. S. Owen for the crown, took an hour in presenting argument and evidence in support of his contention the accused were guilty.

HEAD JUDGMENT

Judge McIntosh then read a prepared judgment, which took three-quarters of an hour to deliver. The charge, he said, was that the accused and others, including Jole Celona, between March 15, 1933, and December 31, 1934, conspired to effect a public mischief by obstructing the police force in the carrying out of their duties.

He reviewed the evidence at length and pointed out that one salient feature of the crown's evidence was that

RULING SOON ON BABY BONDS

Mr. Justice Robertson Hears Arguments Against and For Vancouver Plan

Canadian Press
Vancouver, July 19.—Nine objections to the validity of the city's new baby bond by-law were urged in the British Columbia Supreme Court before Mr. Justice H. B. Robertson today by H. R. Bray on an application for an interim injunction to restrain the city of Vancouver from proceeding with the creation and issue of the $1,500,000 debentures.

Judgment was reserved. Mr. Bray was counsel with J. B. Williams for George Herbert Louis Smith, contractor and builder, who attacked the legality of the bonds as a ratepayer.

Wendell B. Farris, K.C.; D. E. McTaggart and A. E. Lord were counsel for the city.

"This is a matter of public importance," said Mr. Farris, after presenting argument in support of the by-law. "The action is launched not on merit but on the most highly technical flimsy objections," he contended.

Unless the court intervenes, the bonds will be issued on July 31.

Mr. Bray reiterated some of the arguments which he made to Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald on the hearing of the original baby bond by-law which the judge held to be invalid.

Since then the city council passed a new by-law and eliminated certain features from the measure which the court had previously found against.

Plaintiffs' counsel to-day again stressed the point that the city had exceeded the limits of its borrowing powers. He said the by-law provided for a number of objects, and it should be confined to one object.

Another objection was that it empowered the mayor to raise the money, and under the charter and the enabling act only the council had this power.

A further objection was that the by-law did not charge the credit of the city, but raised the money on the credit of the bonds.

Mr. Farris contended that the court should be satisfied that the city had acted within its powers.

Only relevant conduct of the accused in relation to the charge should be considered, he said. Briefly, he explained, the accused were charged with conspiracy to commit a public mischief by not enforcing certain sections of the code dealing with immorality and gaming.

It was notorious that the city police was undermanned. In other words, he said, the activities of the police were concentrating on major crime, which was rampant.

From evidence of association of Cameron with Celona on two police boat cruises, meetings at Cameron's ranch, his office and his home, the court had been asked to deduce there was an agreement to carry into effect an unlawful purpose, he stated.

It was peculiar that at none of these meetings was Barrack present; and to accuse the crown must show that all participated and acted in concert.

NO SECRECY
He pointed out other police officers were present on all occasions and no secrecy was observed. It was significant nothing was said, and the usual element in a case of this kind was absent, about money or money's worth. It was here non-existent, he observed.

Whether the practice, which Inspector of Detectives McNeill said was followed in going to the underworld for information, when investigating major crime, was proper was not for the court to decide, he said. It was a recognized practice observed by the "GOOD JOB."

"The police commission told him to stamp out a wave of major crime, and he made a very good job of it," said Mr. Wismer in his closing address to the judge on behalf of Cameron.

After tracing his career from the time he was a farm lad in Scotland, he said Cameron was unfortunate enough to accept the office of chief constable for Vancouver. The town was ridden by gun men.

"John Cameron was one of the ablest chief constables," said Mr. Wismer. "You cannot get them by sitting in your office and twiddling your thumbs."

He commented that crown counsel apparently thought it was all right for detectives to go to the underworld for their information, but if the chief of police did so then he committed some crime.

Cameron was successful, according to his counsel, and in two years practically rid the city of major crime.

"You can't add six or seven suspicious together and make a crime out of it," Mr. Henderson said. He pointed out that Cameron was not charged with corruption.

PROSECUTION ARGUMENTS
Presenting the case for the crown, Mr. Donaghy ridiculed Cameron's story of his trip to Howe Sound to solve an unsolved murder, and a meeting between Cameron and Celona in the ex-chief's home was ludicrous, and looked phoney, he submitted.

NOT TO BE FOUND
He said further: "My submission is the judge put himself in a place where he ought the public would not find him. He put himself there in order the public should not find him. He put himself in a place where a member of the public had tried to look for him he would have found a door with the word 'private' on it."

Mr. Greene concluded his argument at 4 o'clock and the hearing was adjourned until Monday.

BOXER BEFORE LONDON COURT

Del Fontaine, Canadian, Is Given Preliminary Hearing On Murder Charge

Canadian Press
London, July 19.—After reproaching the girl for ruining his career, turning him against his wife and threatening to kill her, Del Fontaine (Raymond Bouquet) shot and killed pretty twenty-one-year-old Hilda Meek and then wounded her mother, the prosecution charged at the preliminary hearing of the Winnipeg and Moose Jaw, Sask., boxer to-day on charges of murder and attempted murder.

The hearing was adjourned for a week after the prosecution had spoken of the friendship between the two and alleged Fontaine was in a jealous rage when the shooting was done in the Meek's home earlier this month.

The prosecution declared Fontaine was married, with three children at home in Canada. He said Fontaine met Miss Meek about two and a half years ago and the couple were on affectionate terms. The boxer was a frequent visitor at the Meek home in South Lambeth, he said.

GIFFY'S PREDICTION
The story of how a gypsy predicted Hilda Meek would be murdered within three years was alleged to have been told by Fontaine to the police when he was arrested early this month.

The prosecution declared Fontaine shot Miss Meek in the sitting room of her home, that she ran out on the street, and there collapsed. Fontaine then shot Mrs. Meek as she came out, carrying the girl back into the house, where she died, it was alleged. The older woman is still in a critical condition.

SAID LIFE RUINED
The prosecutor quoted Fontaine as declaring when taken to the police station: "I shot the girl. I really care for her, but she has broken my heart and ruined my life. I don't care if I die. Don't think I am crazy."

The last was in reference to the expected defence plea that Fontaine suffered head injuries during his ring battles.

Fontaine, the prosecutor continued, explained how he and the girl had some drinks earlier in the evening in public houses. Later he heard her make an appointment over the telephone with someone for after he had gone out. He shouted in the telephone, "She is not going to meet you anywhere," and the girl in turn shouted "I shall," and then hung up the receiver.

The boxer threatened to shoot her before he would let her go with anything, the prosecution continued, and then he shot both the mother and daughter.

LETTER READ
A letter found on Bouquet's person, addressed to Hilda Meek, was full of reproaches. It charged her with turning him against "the most wonderful woman in the world," his life, and ruining his life and future in the ring. He was no longer a popular fighter, it said.

"You are going to die with me for a change," counsel quoted from the letter.

The name Del Fontaine was taken by Raymond Bouquet when he became a professional fighter.

tion Party, here to-day. He arrived from Ottawa, planning to go later to Hamilton later, where to-night he will make his key-note campaign speech.

I propose to cover every province of Canada," Mr. Stevens said to-day in answer to a question about his campaign plans. He added, however, that his itinerary was still indefinite, partly because no date for the election had been announced.

He will probably leave for the west early next week and spend about three weeks touring the Prairies and British Columbia.

He stressed that with respect to his mine development policy, in those areas still owned and controlled by the crown he would endeavor to have the development handled in such a way as to accrue to the profit of the state.

"I never said I was going to nationalize all mines," he said.

Stratosphere Flights Will Be Commercial Proposition, Not Scenic

Canadian Press
New York, July 19.—Stratosphere flying—meaning across the continent at 40,000 feet in ten hours regular schedule—is so close to reality that engineers are analyzing the thrill right out of it.

Montony is what they see in place of the dazzling beauty of which man has been dreaming.

"In high-altitude flight," explains W. Bailey Oswald, of an aircraft company, "some passengers might find the darkened sky and reduced visibility of the earth objectionable; but high-altitude flying must be regarded purely as a means of transportation."

"Sightseeing will have to be done at low altitude, with all its attendant evils."

Flight in the stratosphere, he said, offers nearly all that can be desired in safety and reliability. The causes of most flying schedule delays, fog, irregular wind and ice, are not present in the stratosphere.

Safety he finds assured by freedom from humidity, gusty wind and by height eliminating all chance of collision with mountains. In case of trouble, a plane from 40,000 feet could glide to any point within a radius of 120 miles, presumably a safe landing would be always in reach.

Furthermore, the glide would take nearly an hour, and during that time engine repairs might be made without a landing.

No navigating troubles, for sun or stars are always visible. Higher speeds with the same horsepower he figures on as due to lessened density of the atmosphere.

Ethiopians Rally At Emperor's Call

promotion of several officers with whom he offered to shed his own life blood, if need be, for independence from Italy.

RAINY SEASON
The prevailing tropical rains broke against any immediate outbreak of hostilities, but foreign residents of the high-altitude capital, towered above the boggy lowlands, were convinced all hopes for peace after the rainy season ends in September were relinquished.

There was some talk that Addis Ababa, which means "New Flower," would be evacuated promptly on an outbreak of war because of fear of attacks by Italian bombing planes.

Associated Press
Rome, July 19.—Italian unofficial circles asserted to-day that Emperor Haile Selassie's exhortation to his people to "fight to the last man" rendered certain an armed settlement of Italy's dispute with Ethiopia.

These sources interpreted the address as an indication of the Emperor's determination not to yield to Italian demands. No official reaction could be obtained; however, authorities declining to issue any formal comment.

ULTIMATUM PREDICTED
The possibility arose, meanwhile, of diplomatic negotiations between Rome and Addis Ababa.

The authoritative affairs review, "Affari Esteri," asserted the controversy could be solved peacefully if Ethiopia would accept solutions which eventually will be proposed to the east African empire.

This statement was taken by informed circles to mean that a semi-formal moment Italy will deliver an ultimatum to Ethiopia, containing its conditions for peace, with a clear understanding that if the conditions are not accepted, war will follow.

ITALY AND JAPAN
Tokio, July 19 (Associated Press).—Ambassador Giacinto Auriti of Italy called on Foreign Minister Hirota to-day to seek further clarification of Japan's attitude on the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

The scope of the two diplomats' conversation was not divulged, but vernacular newspapers said they believed Hirota had seized on the occasion to modify somewhat the recent statement of Ambassador Sugimura in Rome that the Japanese Government had no intention of intervening in the dispute.

The newspaper Nichi Nichi reported the Japanese Foreign Office has attached particular importance to the Italo-Ethiopian crisis because it was a dispute between white and colored races.

The Foreign Office spokesman asserted, however, Japan's attitude remained merely one of "watching with great concern."

WILL BE DISCIPLINED
The vernacular press agreed that Ambassador Sugimura had exceeded his authority and misrepresented the Japanese Government's attitude when he informed Premier Benito Mussolini at Rome July 18 that Japan had no intention of intervening in the dispute.

The newspapers said the ambassador faced disciplinary action and possibly recall, and foreign officials conceded the Ambassador to Italy "will be asked to report further details to Tokyo to clear up the muddled situation."

BRITAIN'S EFFORTS
London, July 19 (Associated Press).—Great Britain took new impetus to-day for its drive for peace between Italy and Ethiopia from Emperor Haile Selassie's appeal to his empire to defend its independence.

After a prolonged cabinet discussion yesterday on the crisis the ministers were expected to hold further meetings within the next few days in an attempt to reach a definite decision on Britain's policy in the face of the deadlock.

Some quarters expressed a belief the attitude to be taken by Britain at the special session of the League of Nations Council would not be settled finally until the eleventh hour, the leaders anticipating the situation might undergo rapid changes before the meeting probably about July 25.

TERRAIN STUDIED
London, July 19.—Many observers said to-day that while the Ethiopian terrain was decidedly rough in many places, it would not in their opinion greatly hamper a modern invading army.

They pointed out, for one thing, the Ethiopians have almost completely deforested their country for kindling wood during the centuries.

In many sections an Ethiopian army would have far more mobility, as well as the advantage of knowing the country thoroughly, but observers pointed out modern military tactics would be able to overcome any such factors as difficult terrain.

They agreed the Ethiopian climate, after the rainy season ends in September, would present no obstacle of any kind to an invading force.

Ethiopia is to-day, as in its long past, a colorful, surging sort of country, still wild and untamed in many respects, with plenty of rags and less of riches.

In Addis Ababa there are touches of modernity, but Ethiopia is at heart the land of hundreds of years ago.

they cleared the avenues with masses of mobile guards who rode twenty abreast and twenty deep in a moving, solid mass.

GROUPS REFORMED
As the crowds were driven from main avenues into side streets individual members quickly re-formed into other monster surges of humanity.

Again and again police pushed forward in repetitions of the same tactics.

Widepread fist fighting broke out early in the evening outside the main scene of action around the Opera.

BUSSES MAROONED
Crowds which had been driven back clashed with police in front of Le Matin newspaper building. "Horn" ward bound office clerks and sales people, as well as businessmen, were marooned on the street in a sea of demonstrators.

Police finally cleared the Avenue de l'Opera as squads of mounted Republican Guards rode the sidewalks on both sides of the famous street.

Between files of mounted men marched platoons of foot and mobile guards who stretched across the street, sweeping it clean of people.

START OF DISORDERS
Paris, July 19.—Several thousand demonstrators, many with clenched fists raised in Communist salutes, swarmed into the Place d'Opera this evening shouting: "Police with us! Laval resign!"

The surge of demonstrators smashed into crowds of frightened women shoppers at a department store on one of the corners of the famous Parisian square.

Despite the onslaught, police at first showed little activity in barring the stream of demonstrators toward the main portion of the Place, but the hundreds of mobile guards with carbines trooped their horses across the street and blocked the way.

The demonstration, against salary and pension cuts as ordered by Premier Laval in budget-balancing efforts, had been banned by the police.

All through the day curious hundreds had walked through the Place d'Opera, but the police had kept them moving. Suddenly, the Place was filled with thousands of demonstrators who roared out the Communist song, "Internationale," and raised their fists in the Communist salute as they sang.

STORES CLOSED
Many storekeepers in the neighborhood put shutters over their store fronts and quit business for the day. The guards stacked their carbines in the streets and detachments occupied the concrete islands in the middle of the square, while hundreds of police tried to keep the people moving.

Parts of the crowds brought blanks into the Place in an attempt to build a barricade. They pulled their material through the press of people to the front of the Grand Macon de Blanc department store, but police squads charged in rapidly and scattered them.

Paris Police Win Tussle With Great Crowds

Suddenly mobile police guards in motor trucks started to pour into the square, augmenting the heavy force already there. The truck motors roared as the guards streamed down the avenues leading into the Place de l'Opera.

Great crowds of demonstrators were forced off the square and into the boulevards. They cried: "On to the Place de la Concorde!"

It was there the bloody riots of February 6, 1934, took place.

The police did their utmost to block the crowd from heading toward the Place de la Concorde. Repeatedly

"WOMAN IN RED" TALKS

Chicago Friend of Late J. Dillinger Tells How He Read Newspapers About Self

Associated Press
Chicago, July 19.—John Dillinger, the desperado whose death at the hands of federal agents last July 23 ended a famous manhunt, was described today by "the woman in red" as a criminal who delighted in reading newspaper accounts of his crimes. Mrs. Anna Sage, popularly supposed to have put Dillinger on the spot for the G-men, added details today to her story which she told yesterday for the first time when she was found in Chicago.

Known as "the woman in red" because of the dress she wore on the night she and Polly Hamilton accompanied Dillinger when he walked out of the Biograph Theatre on Chicago's northwest side and into the waiting gun fire of Department of Justice agents, Mrs. Sage disclosed incidents in the life of the gangster she says she knew as Jimmy Lawrence.

LATEST EDITIONS
"Jimmy, whom I know now as John Dillinger, was never without the latest editions of the newspapers," she said. "He would sit down and for hours he would avidly read the details of Dillinger's crimes."
"Jimmy said he thought Dillinger must have been very clever. He said Dillinger was too smart for the cops. Now I know why 'Jimmy' thought so highly of Dillinger."

Yesterday she denied she had "put the finger on Dillinger." Bitterly she attacked the reports that she knew the man who played cards in her home and took her to theatres and night clubs was John Dillinger. To her he was "Jimmy Lawrence," a board of trade employee.

WORKERS' PARTY IN U.S. SUGGESTED
Associated Press
Moscow, July 19.—A plan to build a workers' party in the United States was outlined yesterday by William Z. Foster, once Communist candidate for President of the United States, in an article in the magazine Communist International.

He said the party would constitute a united front of all workers and farmers desiring to break with the two major political parties and might be sufficiently organized to have a presidential candidate for the 1936 election.
He stated the activity on behalf of the creation of this party was at present one of the principal tasks confronting United States Communists, but he warned it would be a mistake to try to organize it under Communist control.
He declared Communists were bound nevertheless, "if they act energetically," to acquire a leading influence in it.
In his article, Foster declared conditions in the United States "have finally reached a point where a united workers' party was an absolute necessity."

LIFE SENTENCE FOR MURDERER
Associated Press
Detroit, July 19.—Merton Ward Goodrich brought his trial for the murder of eleven-year-old Lillian Gellagher to an abrupt end today by pleading guilty.

Pale and trembling, the one-time trap drummer in beer garden archway stood before Recorder Judge Henry S. Sweeney as sentence of life imprisonment at hard labor in the Marquette branch prison was imposed.

MEAT DEALER WIPES OFF BILLS
Associated Press
Seattle, July 19.—A philanthropist is Alex Benoit, World War veteran and meat market proprietor. Benoit announced today he was going to "clean the slate" of approximately $800 worth of bills due him.

Benoit sent the following message to his debtors: "I forgive every man his meat bill; come in and buy and get a receipt."
The bills, Benoit said, had been piling up ever since he opened shop eight years ago.
About 450 customers are on his books.

London, July 19.—Sir Samuel Hoare, Foreign Secretary, was guest of honor at a luncheon of the Foreign Press Association yesterday. He said the three principles of the National Government were a policy of realism, a desire for peace and conciliation, and the exercise of the greatest care to maintain, despite the difficulties of the international situation, cordial relations with representatives of foreign powers.

PROTESTS BAN
Hollywood, Calif., July 19.—Branding the British Labor Ministry unfair in its decree that a group of American girls billed in London as "Long Prince's Hollywood Beauties," must discontinue English appearances, Prince, Hollywood dance director, today cabled the labor ministry demanding an explanation, and also telegraphed the British ambassador, asking an investigation.

"I'm turned up," said Prince. "Here we are in Hollywood flooded with English actors and actresses, most of whom are being paid fabulous salaries—and those poor little girls, none of whom receives more than $75 a week, get their means of livelihood taken from them."

THE PEACE BALLOT

SO MUCH INTEREST HAS BEEN TAKEN all over the world in the Peace Ballot which Great Britain has conducted over many months that it is not too much to say that many of our readers would like to keep the official details for future reference. The grand total of votes cast, as disclosed at a demonstration of 10,000 workers in the cause of peace assembled from all parts of Britain last month at the Royal Albert Hall in London, was 11,627,765.

This total means that 38 per cent of all men and women over the age of eighteen years signed the ballot forms. And here are the five questions on which the nation voted:

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

1. Should Great Britain remain a member of the League of Nations?
Yes.....11,157,040.....No.....357,460
Abstentions and doubtful.....113,263
2. Are you in favor of an all-round reduction of armaments by international agreement?
Yes.....10,338,826.....No.....867,227
Abstentions and doubtful.....236,713
3. Are you in favor of all-round abolition of national military and naval armaments by international agreement?
Yes.....9,392,373.....No.....1,687,577
Abstentions and doubtful.....337,515
4. Should the manufacture and sale of armaments for private profit be prohibited by international agreement?
Yes.....10,480,002.....No.....779,513
Abstentions and doubtful.....268,890
5. Do you consider that, if a nation insists on attacking another, the other nations should combine to compel it to stop by:
(a) Economic and non-military measures?
Yes.....10,068,315.....No.....636,111
Abstentions and doubtful.....301,332
(b) If necessary, military measures?
Yes.....6,827,699.....No.....2,364,279
Abstentions and doubtful.....2,435,787

Of the 11,625,765 votes cast in the ballot (97 per cent in favor of the League) approximately nine and a half million were recorded in England, one million in Scotland, one million in Wales, and 70,000 in Northern Ireland.

The percentage poll of the 341 parliamentary constituencies which voted is over 43 per cent, and it is estimated that at least 50 per cent of the people who received ballot papers signed them.

The highest polls were in Wales and Northern England. Of the fifty-three parliamentary constituencies which polled more than 60 per cent of the population over eighteen years of age, twenty-three were in Wales, twenty-two in the North, five in the Midlands, two in Southern England, and one in the Eastern Counties.

The record poll of 86.6 was recorded in the Montgomery constituency of Wales.

Many polls were higher than those recorded in parliamentary elections; very many higher than in local government elections.

The order of "popularity" of the questions, which never varied during the voting is:

- Question 1—Support for League.
- Question 5a—Collective security by non-military measures.
- Question 4—Abolition of private manufacture of arms.
- Question 3—All-round disarmament.
- Question 3b—Abolition of naval and military armaments.
- Question 5b—Collective security by military measures.

Voting on Question Four is of interest in view of the present Royal Commission on Manufacture and Trading in Arms. Of the total votes 10,417,329 were for abolition of private trading and only 775,415 against.

Even in towns like Coventry and Sheffield, where many people depend on the manufacture of arms for their living, there was an overwhelming vote for abolition of private trading.

Half a million voluntary workers enrolled by 1,000 local committees delivered and collected the voting papers. It is obvious, therefore, that the British Government has been given its cue on the matter of peaceful policies.

TOUGH ON THE TOUGHS

A CONVICT WHO RECENTLY emerged from Alcatraz prison, that little island in San Francisco Bay, where our neighbor confines its most vicious criminals, has a horrible tale to tell of the plight of poor Al Capone.

The one-time czar of Chicago's rackets, according to this man, is being driven almost insane by the harsh treatment which is being meted out to him. Infractions of the rules, he says, are punished by confinement in "the hole," a species of dark and uncomfortable dungeon. Capone has had a taste of it, and it is beginning to get him down, says the informant.

Making due allowances for the exaggeration with which an ex-convict is apt to speak of his prison sufferings—and remembering that the Alcatraz warden denies this tale of brutal treatment—one might remark that it would be hard to think of a complaint less likely to stir the sympathies of the general public. The men confined at Alcatraz are not of the unfortunate first offenders in need of reform. They are remarkably tough and unpleasant lugs, all of them, and "if such men as Capone are getting a taste of rough treatment . . . well, it is just too bad."

NOT AT PRESENT

FORTY-FIVE MEMBERS OF THE BRITISH House of Commons and thirty-five members of the House of Lords have banded themselves together to "ginger up" empire migration. The organization will be known as the "Imperial Policy Group" and its scheme is to be based on "true Tory faith directed to an imperial end."

Lord Mansfield has moved a resolution in the Upper House on which is to open the campaign. It has drawn attention to the "lack of any policy of His Majesty's government for imperial and colonial development, and of any long-term proposals for the permanent reduction of unemployment in this country by a scheme of properly organized overseas settlement in co-operation with His Majesty's governments overseas."

We are told that the newly-formed group intends to send a delegation of three to Canada to explore the possibilities of migration to the Dominion after the forthcoming Canadian general elections in this country have been held. The idea suggested is community settlement in the dominions and colonies. As a result of its policy the group contemplates a drift of industries westward, with Canada eventually established as one of the greater industrial centres of the empire.

Much good may be done in Canada by a tour of exploration by the group's delegation of three. If they are strangers to the Dominion they will find a great deal to interest them; if they have previously visited this country they will be able to renew old associations and bring their information of Canadian affairs up to date.

The Imperial Policy Group, however, had better make up its mind at the outset that as far as Canada is concerned the "ginger up" process which it proposes will not impress the present or the next government at Ottawa very forcibly at this time. This Dominion naturally would be glad to see Britain's unemployed army very considerably reduced, but Canada is faced with a similarly costly problem. It is on this account, of course, that this country must provide for its own idle citizens and their dependents before it can think of admitting more people to add to the gravity of the problem.

In any event neither the present government nor the one which will succeed it would countenance any outlay on an immigration scheme such as that proposed by the Imperial Policy Group. When the time comes to invite new people—as it will do when economic conditions improve sufficiently—there will have to be laid down rigid rules, both in the interests of the intending settler as well as in the interests of the Dominion.

"ONLY A FEW MILLIONS"

A CANADIAN PRESS DISPATCH FROM Ottawa says that failure to placate Japan would result "in the loss of only a few millions of dollars in trade, but British Columbia would bear almost the entire loss."

If we are to assume that this is the Dominion government's attitude toward this loss of trade, a trade which has enabled Canada to sell to Japan at a ratio of four dollars to one, it is high time that Mr. Bennett and his high-tariff cohorts got out of office.

The Vancouver Sun sums it up very pointedly when it refers to the visit of Premier Lyons of Australia, and the argument which hinges upon the tariff racket, and says:

Premier Lyons comes to Canada with the appeal, "Buy more from Australia, so that we can buy more from you. We now buy $3 worth for every $1 worth we sell you." (Canada sold Australia nearly $17,000,000 worth of goods last year and bought from Australia $6,000,000 worth.)

Belgium protests because Canada sold her $11,000,000 worth of goods, but bought only $3,500,000 in return.

Japan slaps on a 50 per cent surcharge on her tariff against Canadian goods because Canada sells Japan $18,000,000 worth of goods a year and buys only $4,000,000 in return.

Canadians are supposed to rejoice when Ottawa tells them that Canada's favorable trade balance was $139,000,000.

The truth is that Canada, with her Bennett government policy of "sell goods abroad but don't buy in return" is destroying markets. Every favorable balance we have with a country to which we do not owe money is bound to drive that country's customers away.

The reason is plain. They can only pay for goods with goods. If Canada will not let them do it, they must buy in countries that will. Canada's real national policy is a policy that will expend the total volume of both imports and exports, and at the same time provide a fund of cheap credit that will build up the home market to help absorb the products of her own factories and farms.

This business of trying to do all the selling and only a fraction of the buying, of course, is the typical Tory policy. It is a case of the Bourbon mind. Happily, however, within a few months the Dominion of Canada will have a new government which will realize that the Canadian people can not exist, economically, at any rate, by taking in one another's washing.

MAN'S PURPOSE

If all of life be food and play,
'Tis well they do who hurry on;
And give no thought to night or day
Except that it will soon be gone.

The beasts no question make of time
Nor how they came nor whence they go.
Born to the hills or river slimes
Hunger and thirst are all they know.

Instinctively to life they cling:
From foes in terror oft they fly.
But to the loveliness of spring
They never raise a raptured eye.

They have no pity in the sense
That they would share what food they gain
Or think it were of consequence
To stop to soothe another's pain.

But man is fretted by his dreams
And man is prey to many a mood
Till only secondary seems
The quest for shelter and for food.

Prompted by thought and high desires,
He senses something finer far
To which the soul of him aspires
Than all his selfish pleasures are.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

COUNTRYMAN

AS I SIT here to-day, thinking of the less important things of life, the sound of an important one comes through my window—the soft, cowering sound of a scythe against ripe oats. A man is reaping the oats in the field yonder, swinging his whole body as he cuts in a motion of superb physical rhythm, but, because he is dressed in a straw hat and overalls and has a face like an old shoe, I suppose you would observe nothing beautiful about him.

He is cutting the oats as his fathers cut it before him since the days of ancient Egyptians, and there is something beautiful about that, too, if you think about it. And the smell of the new-mown fields, and the brown sweep of the stubble is pleasant to the nose and to the eye, a timeless picture that makes the current difficulties of the world seem rather small and rather temporary.

One could compose a fine poem, if one could compose poems at all, on the immortal reaping of the grain, the unending job of bringing in the harvest and the calm sanity of life in the world, which is far more significant and far more vital to humanity than anything you are likely to hear in the federal election campaign. You could write a fine essay on the peasant's heart, a countryman's peace, going quietly about his godlike task, hand in hand with nature, while foolish economists and hysterical statesmen in the world, on the other side of the hill, are running about in circles. You could preach a sermon on the simplicity and nobility of the men who stand with their feet solidly on the earth while the rest of humanity raves and moans. But, as it happens you would be wrong.

CRASH

JUST NOW I went down into the field there and, sitting on a haystack, engaged the noble countryman in conversation. I wanted to hear him talk about the immortal lore of the harvest and the calm sanity of life in the country. I wanted to see how the abiding instinct of the land had come down to him through the ages.

But, no sooner had I said hello than he asked me very solemnly: "If you've got any bonds, or stocks, or insurance, you'd better turn it into cash. There's going to be a financial crash right away. There's going to be a smash-up worse'n anything we ever seen before. There ain't goin' to be nothin' left after this bust. You take it from me, I know."

When I asked him how he had acquired this important information, he replied that his brother-in-law, a man named Jenkins, had told him. Mr. Jenkins, it appeared, was a man who knew things.

"Listen," said the noble countryman, speaking in a low tone, as if international speculators might be lurking in the ditch beside us. "Listen, Jenkins—that's my brother-in-law—he got word direct from Paris. Direct, mind. Pretty soon, maybe tomorrow, maybe to-night, there won't be a stock or bond or insurance policy that'll be worth a nickel."

As I left, he went on cutting the oats with a beautiful rhythmic motion. What charming, innocent thoughts fill the heads of the noble countryman in these times!

GOLDEN PHEASANTS

I WAS TELLING Mrs. Noggins about it at the corner just now as she went by, her great bag bulging with parcels.

"Bless you," said she, "there's lots of fellers like that these days. Why, I've got a cousin named Burt, and a right smart young feller, too. Burt is a bricklayer and a good one, 'till he got 'old of a book by a feller named Mark, a German feller with a long beard, you know, who started socialism and all that stuff."

"Well, Burt was doin' fine 'till he read Mark and then 'e got sure there was goin' to be a revolution in the world some day. The more 'e read, the surer 'e was there was goin' to be a revolution. Well, sir, this spring he says to me, 'e says: 'It's a-comin' this year, Bessie, sure. There'll be blood runnin' in the streets before June,' 'e says, and 'e you've got any sense, get out,' 'e says, 'while there's time.' So blessed if Burt don't quit brick layin' and sold 'is car and bought a bit of land up near Comox and went farmin'."

"But ordinary farmin' weren't good enough for a feller who'd read Mark. Why no, 'e was goin' to do something out of the way, so 'e started to raise golden pheasants. Seems 'e 'eard there was a market for 'em in the 20s or somethin' down south. While 'e was waitin' for the two golden pheasants to perdoose some young Burt 'e spent most of 'is time writin' letters to the papers tellin' everybody we'd got to 'ave a planned economy with a lot of real clever fellas like Burt runnin' 'is."

"Well, sir, the golden pheasants didn't perdoose no-ways—'e was wrong. 'e was goin' to do something out of the way, so 'e started to raise golden pheasants. Seems 'e 'eard there was a market for 'em in the 20s or somethin' down south. While 'e was waitin' for the two golden pheasants to perdoose some young Burt 'e spent most of 'is time writin' letters to the papers tellin' everybody we'd got to 'ave a planned economy with a lot of real clever fellas like Burt runnin' 'is."

LABELED

BUT I FEAR Mrs. Noggins takes these things too casually. She would be surprised if she knew as much about the revolution as I do. I have been talking to a lot of young Victoria revolutionists, who have everything arranged and are ready to take hold of the country immediately after the war. You would be surprised to find how completely they have everything worked out and how they have everybody classified.

You may imagine, for example, that you are just an ordinary citizen, just a fellow who wants to get along comfortable in the world. But you are not. You are probably a petty bourgeois, which I gather from my young revolutionary friend, is several inches lower than a worm.

With some hesitation in such company, I mentioned Mr. Woodworth's name. He was a little son of a gun, just to see what the revolutionists would say. "Woodworth?" said they. "Why, he's not a radical. He's just a social democrat! The whole C.C.F. isn't socialistic really. Just social democrat." A social democrat, it seems, is several feet lower than a petty bourgeois. A petty bourgeois like you can't help himself. He was probably born that way and hasn't seen the light, but a social democrat is a fellow who knows better but simply won't help to make the streets run with blood.

Well, I gathered about Mr. Stevens? Wasn't he radical enough? Mr. Stevens? Why, Mr. Stevens was just a rank fascist. So was Mr. Bennett. So was Gerry McGeer. What we must have, said the young revolutionaries, all of whom wore white collars and had beautifully manicured hands, was a government of proletarians, of workers. I looked at my hands, roughened and blackened with toil in the earth and I asked them what they thought I was. They said they had argued a good deal about that in private. Some thought I was a factor in it, all carefully tagged, labeled and pigeon-holed, ready for the guillotine. It gives you a status in the world and a new feeling of importance.

Anyway, my young revolutionary friends said communism would come within twenty-five years and with it the disappearance of international boundaries, race prejudices and every form of hate and ill will. And, over several beers, they spent the rest of the evening bitterly hating all social democrats, fascists, Liberals, socialists and bourgeois and, indeed, most of the population.

The revolution is very confusing to an ordinary person. But it is pleasant to hear that a bunch of a factor in it, all carefully tagged, labeled and pigeon-holed, ready for the guillotine. It gives you a status in the world and a new feeling of importance.

NEW BERLIN POLICE CHIEF

Count Von Helldorf, Named
To Post, is Violently
Anti-Jewish

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Associated Press Foreign Staff
Berlin, July 19.—Magnus von Levetzow, who failed to chase the Jews out of Berlin or at least restrict them to the ghetto, resigned to-day, under fire, as Berlin police president and his post was filled by Count von Helldorf, regarded as a violent anti-Semite.

It was he who in 1929 organized the first anti-Semitic demonstration on the Kurfurstendamm, where several Jews were beaten up this week in anti-Semitic outbreaks.

An official statement declared: "The necessary task of the (Nazi) party, the police and the city administration to co-operate and preserve the character of Berlin and make it worthy of being the capital of the Nazi Reich."

BANNERS IN STREETS
An anti-Semitic campaign meanwhile developed openly. In Schoenenburg, a Berlin suburb, banners were stretched across the streets announcing: "We do not want to see any Jews in Berlin," "Out with the Jews" and similar messages.

The official Nazi newspaper, "NSD," attacked the Berlin marriage license bureau with a headline: "Is racial shame still tolerated in Berlin?" Although no legal decrees exist which forbid intermarriage of Aryans and non-Aryans, the city administration was blamed for not forbidding such marriages at registration.

PURCHASERS ATTACKED
Renewed anti-Jewish outbreaks were witnessed yesterday evening in Berlin when howling youths attacked customers coming out of a large Jewish-owned ice cream plant.

In the northern district of Berlin yesterday evening customers were reported chased down side streets and badly manhandled when caught. Eye-witnesses said purchases were snatched out of the hands of men and women customers and thrown in their faces.

Fifty-two Cleared Of Picketing Charge

New York, July 19.—Fifty-two men and women arrested Wednesday evening for picketing in front of the offices of the American Mercury of Fifth Avenue were discharged yesterday in west side court.

Magistrate Anna M. Cross ruled the pickets' behavior did not constitute disorderly conduct.

Arthur Garfield Hays acted as chief defense counsel for the group, which included Michael Smith, a representative in the Washington State Legislature.

STEVENS STANDS IN EAST KOOTENAY

Ottawa, July 19.—Hon. H. H. Stevens, leader of the Reconstruction Party, will be a candidate in East Kootenay, B.C., in the federal general election.

Mr. Stevens yesterday announced his nomination would take place in the riding within a few days. He would have practically the same organization as backed him in the 1930 by-election when he was elected for East Kootenay by acclamation after joining the Bennett Government as Minister of Trade and Commerce, he stated.

"I cannot say," Mr. Stevens replied when asked if a candidate would be nominated on the Conservative ticket to oppose him.

Mr. Stevens left yesterday evening for Hamilton, where he will speak this evening.

ORGANIZERS NAMED
Toronto, July 19 (Canadian Press).—J. F. Noble, Vancouver, has been appointed organizer for the reconstruction party in British Columbia.

Warren Cook, Ontario organizer of the new party of Hon. H. H. Stevens, former Minister of Trade and Commerce, announced yesterday evening.

Earlier it was announced Phyllis B. Asford, Toronto, had been appointed national organizer of the women's division.

Headlines bore such phrases as "Unheard-of Sermons," "Fresh Provocation" and "Hand in Hand with Marxists."

The National Zeitung at Essen warned Protestants that opposition to "German christian" Nazis could expect as hard a fight as the Catholic hierarchy.

FINGERS SHOT OFF; MAN WINS SUM

Canadian Press
Toronto, July 19.—John Langley, professional violinist of Toronto, was successful yesterday in action against the Fidelity Insurance Company of Canada for an indemnity under an insurance policy for damages suffered when two fingers were blown off his left hand by the discharge of a shotgun.

The case was tried before Mr. Justice W. T. Henderson in June, and in reasons for judgment given to-day Langley was awarded $70 a week for fifty-two consecutive weeks and the costs of the action. Arrears of indemnity and interest amount to $1,151.79.

The insurance company contended the plaintiff was negligent in carrying a loaded gun in his car, but Mr. Justice Henderson made the distinction that at the time of the accident the plaintiff was not "carrying" the gun.

Cancer Treatment Report Welcomed

Canadian Press
Vancouver, July 19.—"It is a credit to the work being done in Canadian cancer research centres," stated Dr. Wesley C. Prowd, in charge of cancer treatment at St. Paul's Hospital, Vancouver, commenting on the discovery of "enol" as announced Wednesday by Dr. Hendry C. Connell of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont.

"A good deal of research has been done to try to discover a cure of this nature," Dr. Prowd said. "The theory is that there may be a serum or solution that may be used against cancer in much the same way that certain serums are used against typhoid and smallpox."

There are between 2,500 and 3,000 cases of cancer under observation in British Columbia.

INQUIRY SOUGHT
The council previously forwarded a letter protesting the granting of the license and seeking an inquiry into the issuing of it.

The Liquor Control Board, according to Mr. Sloan, was in possession of a petition signed by 2,570 persons advocating the granting of the license. The petition was signed by 400 Saanich residents, 217 of whom were residents of the adjacent area, Mr. Sloan said.

The only protests other than the one from Saanich had been from church organizations and kindred bodies, he continued. Also the board had endeavored to co-operate with municipalities and had on file a letter from Reeve Alex. Lockley of Equimait, in which the reeve said he could see no objection to the granting of the license.

"Well, I know one thing," was Reeve Crouch's comment after the reading of the Attorney-General's letter, "they did not come to my place or any of the other homes around the Gorge."

Reeve Crouch lives in the first house east of the junction of the Gorge Road and the road which crosses the Gorge bridge.

Albany, N.Y., July 19.—Governor Herbert Lehman said yesterday he had no "protest" to make because Canadian border officials ordered New York state troopers to give up their guns when entering the Dominion last Monday evening as an escort to the governor.

Captures Twenty-five-mile Grind in Fast Time For Second Successive Victory

Covering the twenty-five-mile course in one hour five minutes and twenty seconds, John Newman, veteran racer, captured the senior event in the second time trials sponsored by the Victoria Cycling Club yesterday evening. Ken Reid set the pace to capture the junior seven and sixteenth-mile event in nineteen minutes and ten seconds. Nine local riders competed in the two events.

In winning the senior race, Newman chalked up his second successive victory in this event, having captured the first-time trial earlier in the season. In second place, thirty-five seconds slower than the winner, was Charles Warren, while Harold Whitehead, who covered the course in 1:06:44, was awarded third place.

Other riders and their times were: N. Newman, 1:08:30; K. Langrish, 1:10:21, and Bill Reid, 1:15:45.

Ken Reid bettered the time made in the first trial meet in winning the junior event from a field of three. Billy Stevenson picked off second place with an elapsed time of 20:25. Thirty-five seconds behind Stevenson was Bill Tassef who completed the course in twenty-one minutes flat.

The third and final trial will be held about the middle of next month.

DECLINE RAISE IN RELIEF PAY

Council Unable to Give More
Than at Present; Delegation
Seeks Increase

Owing to the fact that the major portion of the increase would have to be borne by the municipality, the Saanich Council yesterday evening declined a request from unemployed and members of the Anglican church to provide the increases of 10 per cent and $1 for each dependent allowed on the government scale for relief.

The council thrashed the issue out for some time, sitting until twenty minutes after midnight, and then ated its stand that the municipality was giving all it possibly could towards unemployment relief.

Members of the delegation were: Dean Quainton, Rev. O. L. Jull, Rev. Alan Gardiner and Rev. F. Comley, representing the Anglican clergy; and W. B. White, F. D. Wilson, A. G. Hemming, Don, McLeod, E. McLeod and Charles Buckingham.

LIVING COSTS UP

Mr. White, on behalf of the unemployed, expressed appreciation of the interest taken in the relief question by members of the clergy. He referred to the situation pertaining to the unemployed, stating living costs had been increased while relief scales in Saanich had remained the same.

"I need hardly say we have not come here to throw stones at public representatives, as their bed is not a bed of roses these days," Dean Quainton said in opening.

He felt he could say nothing on the situation which the council did not know, but he desired the council to adopt a humane outlook when dealing with it.

THE CHRISTIAN WAY

AIRPORT CLAIM GIVEN SUPPORT

The city of Victoria's resolution requesting the establishment of a recognized airport in Victoria was given the support of the Oak Bay and Saanich Councils yesterday when copies of the original resolution prepared by the Chamber of Commerce were received. Endorsement was given without comment by both bodies.

place and ask how you would like it—that is the Christian way," he said.

The Dean felt he would be more violent and more obstreperous if he were in such a position.

The fact that living costs had gone up while relief allowances had remained the same constituted a cut in a practical way, he contended.

"You may say 'we can't afford to do it' and my reply, gentlemen, would be that it is wonderful how public bodies can find money when they want it," he said.

Mr. White hoped the council could see its way to grant the 10 per cent increase and $1 extra for each child.

ADDED BURDEN

Reeve Crouch told the delegation such action would mean an extra burden of $11,000 a year to the ratepayers. He thought the delegation had started at the wrong end, suggesting they should have advocated a policy of paying on ability to pay before government officials. Personally, he could see no hope for any extra relief being given. It was a case of "the poor keeping the poor" under the present administration of relief, he reeve said.

Mr. Comley ventured the opinion that any ratepayer would be willing to "dig deeper" into his pockets for the sake of children needing milk and other necessities. He suggested the council put its case to the government and thought if Vancouver could get extra money, Saanich should be able to.

SCALES COMPARED

Councillor G. S. Eden, Ward Seven, felt as long as the municipalities relieved the government of its just debts the longer it was going to have to carry the burden of relief.

Councillor A. G. Lambbrick, Ward Three, compared the Saanich scale with the government allowance, showing the municipal allowance to be the following amounts lower: Man and wife, nine cents; man, wife and one child, thirteen cents; two children, $1.57; three children, $3.11; four children, $4.65; and five children, $6.19.

Mr. Hemming, Mr. Jull and Mr. Buckingham also took part in the discussion.

WILL CONTINUE PRIMARY SCHOOL

Spring Ridge to be Kept Open For Children of Early Grades

Spring Ridge School will remain open next term as the result of action taken by the City School Board yesterday evening.

While appreciating the facilities were not of the best, the board decided to keep the institution going upon the recommendation of the municipal inspector.

Advantages of a separate institution for the primary grades were outlined, note being taken of the fact segregation from bigger children was considered beneficial for outdoor activity.

MISS H. DOULL IS APPOINTED

To Succeed Miss Mona Miller
as Instructress at Victoria
High School

Miss Harriett Doull, 411 Linden Avenue, daughter of Bishop A. J. Doull, formerly of Victoria and Vernon, graduate of McGill University in physical education, was provisionally appointed successor to Miss Mona Miller as physical instructress at Victoria High School by the City School Board yesterday evening.

Arthur Bagshaw, a teacher of considerable experience and holder of a first class certificate, was appointed on probation as physical training teacher required in the reshuffle of that department occasioned by the recent resignation of W. H. Blinn.

Both appointees are residents of Victoria. They will hold their posts on probation until the end of the 1935 school term, when, if their work is satisfactory, they will be permanently appointed.

Miss Doull was selected from a field of thirteen candidates for her post. Recommendations submitted stated she had taught half a year and had conducted a recreational class for unemployed women here with particular success.

Mr. Bagshaw, whose application was accompanied by several recommendations, including those from officers directly in charge of the manual training department, in addition to being an experienced teacher in the holder of life saving and first aid certificates.

JANITORIAL TRANSFERS

Eight janitorial transfers were put through by the board on the recommendation of the building and grounds committee.

J. P. Taylor, fireman at the High School, was given the position of engineer at that institution on a six months probation period. J. McKenna, janitor at Victoria West, was promoted to the High School as a fireman-janitor; John Grant, janitor at Bank Street was appointed to Mr. McKenna's former post and was succeeded by J. P. Sylvester, E. Chapple was relieved of janitorial work in the two annexes of North Ward School. Those duties were taken over by Mrs. A. Thornton, who will also care for the principal and teachers' rooms of North Ward School.

Mrs. J. Blackwood was instructed to confine her duties to Kings Road School only and J. Lask, of the High School janitorial staff, was given the position of janitor-gardener, covering four classrooms in the basement and putting in the balance of his time as assistant gardener.

As far as possible the janitorial changes will go into effect on August 1.

TO BUY HEATERS

The board ratified a recommendation from the building and grounds committee that six circulating heaters for various schools be purchased at a cost not to exceed $250.

Tenders will be sought for electric lights and wiring for the wooden annex at Sir James Douglas School and the two annexes at Girls' Central.

MEET NEARS FINAL ROUND

Esquimalt Tennis Finals Are Billed for Saturday and Sunday

Only four matches were played in the annual Esquimalt tennis championships at the Hillcrest Club courts yesterday evening, but three of them went to extra sets before a winner was declared.

Miss Northam and Miss Greaves were forced to three sets before eliminating Mrs. Butler and Miss Lockett 4-6, 6-3, 6-3. In one of the featured matches of the day, The Butler-Lockett combination played good tennis in taking the first set 6-4, and their hard driving and fine placements kept their opponents well bottled up. Taking the offensive in the middle set, the Misses Northam and Greaves allowed their opponents little opportunity to recover their first set steadiness, and the match was evened at a set apiece. Continuing their victorious drive, Miss Northam and Miss Greaves closed quickly to take the third and final set at 6-3, after a display of some fine tennis.

Another three-set women's doubles saw Miss Herrin and Miss Hill defeat Miss Parkinson and Miss Hicks, 6-3, 1-6, 6-3. After getting away to a good start in the first set which they won with the loss of only three games, the Misses Herrin and Hill combination wilted badly in the second set. Rallying nicely in the critical third set, Miss Herrin and Miss Hill repeated their first set performance with a clean-cut win.

FAVORITES ADVANCE

Alan Wright and Bob Sheret, favored men's doubles team, eliminated Butler and Davey, 6-0, 5-7, 6-2. After taking the opening set without the loss of a single game, Wright and Sheret found their opponents much tougher than they had bargained for, and the second set went to Butler and Davey at 7-5. The third and final set was almost a repetition of the initial set, with Wright and Sheret going all out to take the set and match, 6-2.

Defeating Alan Knight 7-5, 6-3 in the only men's singles match of the day, Ivan Temple advanced another notch closer to the championship

Will Recommend Beach Clearance

A recommendation that the federal government undertake the dredging of Oak Bay to make it suitable for the operating of rowboats and other small craft from the beach, will be made by J. P. Forde, Dominion engineer, Reeve Mayhew told the Oak Bay council yesterday. The reeve stated he had discussed the question with Mr. Forde, the latter being of the opinion the work should be performed by the Dominion authorities, while the municipality would have to pay for the removal of large rocks in the bay.

CONTRACTS FOR FUEL AWARDED

City School Board Ensures Supply: To Investigate Coke Proposal

Walter Walker and Son and J. E. Painter and Sons were awarded contracts for supplying the city schools with coal and wood at a meeting of the City School Board yesterday evening.

A communication from the British Columbia Electric Railway Company, fuel department, recommending the use of coke for the schools, was referred to the building and grounds committee.

J. E. Painter and Sons will be asked for a better price on their wood or else will be requested to take back some cords delivered last year which did not meet specifications.

ACKNOWLEDGE CHECK

A cheque for $135, being the provincial government's share of the cost of equipment for the technical school, was acknowledged.

Verbal reports by Trustee Percy George on building conditions revealed all but one boiler in the city schools were in good shape. Hot water pipes at Girls' Central had been covered with asbestos to retain the heat and chimney flues and ventilators had been vacuum cleaned, he said.

Esquimalt Ward Names Delegates

HOW TO MAKE ICED TEA

Infuse six heaping teaspoons of Salada Black Tea in a pint of fresh boiling water. After six minutes strain liquid into two quart containers. While hot, add 1 1/2 cups of granulated sugar and the juice of 2 lemons. Stir well until sugar is dissolved, fill container with cold water. Do not allow tea to cool before adding the cold water; otherwise liquid will become cloudy. Serve with chilled ice.

"Kamlot of Zar," replied my companion.

"What is your profession?"

"Hunter and wood carver."

"You are a Vepajan?"

"Yes."

"From what city of Vepaja?"

"From Kooanad," replied Kamlot.

"And you?" demanded the officer, addressing me.

"I am Carson of Napier," I replied, using the Antorian form; "I am a Vepajan from Kooanad."

"What is your profession?"

"I am an aviator," I replied, using the English word and English pronunciation.

"A what?" he demanded. "He tried to write the word in his book and then he tried to pronounce it, but he could do neither, as the Antorians have no equivalent for many of our vowel sounds and seem unable even to pronounce them. Had I written the word for him in Antorian he would have pronounced it ah-vy-ah-lor, as they cannot form the long 'a' and short 'o' sounds, and their 'i' is always long."

Finally, to cover his ignorance, he wrote something in his book, but what it was I did not know; then he looked up at me again. "Are you a doctor?"

"Yes," I replied, and as the officer made the notation in his book I glanced at Kamlot out of the corner of an eye and winked.

"Take them away," the man now directed, "and be careful of this one," he added, indicating me; "he is a doctor."

We were taken to the main deck and led forward to the accompaniment of jeers and jibes from the sailors congregated on the deck. I saw the klangan strutting around, their tail feathers erect. When they saw us, they pointed to Kamlot, and I heard them telling some of the sailors that he was the one who had slain the barto with a single sword thrust, a feat which appeared to foster their admiration, as well it might have.

We were escorted to an open hatch and ordered below into a dark, poorly ventilated hold, where we found other prisoners. Some of them were Thorians undergoing punishment for instuffy hole below deck where I could see nothing. But if I had feared being kept below for the duration of the voyage, I was soon disillusioned, for shortly after the ship got under way we were all ordered on deck and set to scrubbing and polishing.

The ship was just passing between the two headlands that formed the entrance to the harbor, in the wake of the larger vessel; and I obtained an excellent view of the adjacent land, the shore that we were leaving, and the wide expanse of ocean stretching away to the horizon.

The headlands were rocky promontories clothed with verdure of delicate hues and supporting comparatively few trees, which were of a smaller variety than the giants upon the mainland. The latter presented a truly awe-inspiring spectacle from the open sea, to the eyes of an earth man, their mighty boles rearing their weirdly-colored foliage straight up for 5,000 feet, where they were lost to view among the clouds. But I was not permitted to gaze for long upon the wonders of the scene. I was ordered above for the purpose of satisfying the aesthetic longings of my soul.

Kamlot and I were set to cleaning and polishing guns. There were a number of these on either side of the deck, one at the stern, and two on the tower deck. I was surprised when I saw them, for there had been no sign of armament when I came on board the preceding day; but I was not long in discovering the explanation—the guns were mounted on disappearing carriages, and when lowered, a sliding hatch, flush with the deck, concealed them.

The barrels of these pieces were about eight inches in diameter, while the bore was scarcely larger than my little finger; the sights were ingenious and complicated, but there was no breach block in evidence nor any opening into a breech, unless there was one hidden beneath a hoop that encircled the breech, to which it was heavily bolted. The only thing that I could discover that might have been a firing device projected from the rear of the breech and resembled the rotating crank that is used to revolve the breech block in some types of earthly guns.

The barrels of the guns were about fifteen feet long and of the same diameter from breech to muzzle. When in action they can be extended beyond the rail of the ship about two-thirds of their length, thus affording a wider horizontal range and more deck room, which would be of value on a ship such as that on which I was.

"What do you mean?" demanded Kamlot.

"I mean that they got her," replied Honan dejectedly.

"They captured Duare?" exclaimed Kamlot in tones of horror. "By the life of the long, it cannot be true."

"I wish it were not," said Honan. "Where is she?" On this ship?" demanded Kamlot.

"No; they took her to the other, the larger one."

Kamlot appeared crushed, and I could only attribute his dejection to the hopelessness of a lover who has irrevocably lost his beloved. Our association had not been either sufficiently close nor long to promote confidences, and so I was not surprised that I had never heard him mention the girl, Duare, and, naturally, under the circumstances, I did not question him concerning her. I therefore respected his grief and his silence, and left him to his own thoughts.

CHAPTER XXIV

Shortly after the following morning the ship got under way. I wished that I might have been on deck to view the fascinating sights of this strange world, and my precarious situation as a prisoner of the hated Thorians engendered less regret than the fact that I, the first earth man to sail the seas of Venus, was doomed to be cooped up in a stuffy hole below deck where I could see nothing. But if I had feared being kept below for the duration of the voyage, I was soon disillusioned, for shortly after the ship got under way we were all ordered on deck and set to scrubbing and polishing.

The ship was just passing between the two headlands that formed the entrance to the harbor, in the wake of the larger vessel; and I obtained an excellent view of the adjacent land, the shore that we were leaving, and the wide expanse of ocean stretching away to the horizon.

When in action they can be extended beyond the rail of the ship about two-thirds of their length, thus affording a wider horizontal range and more deck room, which would be of value on a ship such as that on which I was.

"What do you mean?" demanded Kamlot.

"I mean that they got her," replied Honan dejectedly.

"They captured Duare?" exclaimed Kamlot in tones of horror. "By the life of the long, it cannot be true."

"I wish it were not," said Honan. "Where is she?" On this ship?" demanded Kamlot.

"No; they took her to the other, the larger one."

Kamlot appeared crushed, and I could only attribute his dejection to the hopelessness of a lover who has irrevocably lost his beloved. Our association had not been either sufficiently close nor long to promote confidences, and so I was not surprised that I had never heard him mention the girl, Duare, and, naturally, under the circumstances, I did not question him concerning her. I therefore respected his grief and his silence, and left him to his own thoughts.

stuffy hole below deck where I could see nothing. But if I had feared being kept below for the duration of the voyage, I was soon disillusioned, for shortly after the ship got under way we were all ordered on deck and set to scrubbing and polishing.

The ship was just passing between the two headlands that formed the entrance to the harbor, in the wake of the larger vessel; and I obtained an excellent view of the adjacent land, the shore that we were leaving, and the wide expanse of ocean stretching away to the horizon.

The headlands were rocky promontories clothed with verdure of delicate hues and supporting comparatively few trees, which were of a smaller variety than the giants upon the mainland. The latter presented a truly awe-inspiring spectacle from the open sea, to the eyes of an earth man, their mighty boles rearing their weirdly-colored foliage straight up for 5,000 feet, where they were lost to view among the clouds. But I was not permitted to gaze for long upon the wonders of the scene. I was ordered above for the purpose of satisfying the aesthetic longings of my soul.

Kamlot and I were set to cleaning and polishing guns. There were a number of these on either side of the deck, one at the stern, and two on the tower deck. I was surprised when I saw them, for there had been no sign of armament when I came on board the preceding day; but I was not long in discovering the explanation—the guns were mounted on disappearing carriages, and when lowered, a sliding hatch, flush with the deck, concealed them.

The barrels of these pieces were about eight inches in diameter, while the bore was scarcely larger than my little finger; the sights were ingenious and complicated, but there was no breach block in evidence nor any opening into a breech, unless there was one hidden beneath a hoop that encircled the breech, to which it was heavily bolted. The only thing that I could discover that might have been a firing device projected from the rear of the breech and resembled the rotating crank that is used to revolve the breech block in some types of earthly guns.

The barrels of the guns were about fifteen feet long and of the same diameter from breech to muzzle. When in action they can be extended beyond the rail of the ship about two-thirds of their length, thus affording a wider horizontal range and more deck room, which would be of value on a ship such as that on which I was.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER-ELDER

BABIES AREN'T TOYS—DON'T CONFUSE PLAY AND TEASING

How helpless the small child is to protect himself from the rough caresses, or the rough playfulness of grownups? Play should be enjoyable to the child and when it is not it is no longer play, but something very close to torture.

"A Grandmother" is upset by her grandchild's nervousness. "I am coming to you for advice," she writes. "I have a granddaughter one year old, and she is very nervous. She has two sleepers and they as well as her father play very roughly with her. They walk her around and won't let her alone. Could that be the cause of her nervousness?"

FEARS STRANGERS

"Also, she screams and acts frightened when taken among strangers. She nearly has a fit when taken into a strange store or any place where she sees strange people. I am afraid if she is not handled with more care and less rough handling that she will suffer from it."

"Her daddy loves her, but he delights to tease her and be rough with her, and he has acted this way since she was very small. I have had six children, but no experience with such actions as these."

Too much handling of any kind makes a child nervous, because of the emotional excitement incident to handling.

BABIES NEED QUIET

Babies, and this is still a baby, need quiet, plenty of room for exercise, and an opportunity to be active, but in personally directed activity, not activity forced upon them by older persons who want to be amused by playing with the baby.

Most children, as they grow, tend to develop some fear of strangers. If overlooked, this disappears. The child finds that no one forces his or her attention upon her and she loses her fear. When timidity is excessive it would tend to indicate that a child dislikes her experiences with strangers because of their unwelcome efforts to fondle, or to tease her.

SHE'S NO TOY

"How to Deal With Timidity" is the leaflet which you may find helpful. It may be had for a self-addressed and stamped envelope sent to Myrtle Meyer Elder, care of the "Your Baby and Mine" department of this newspaper.

Children are not toys to be played with, but individuals whose likes and dislikes should be respected. When noticeable nervousness and recent result from the sister's and father's rough handling they should have sense enough to realize that they are overdoing it.

SPANKING AGAIN CONTROVERSED

Just when the psychologists thought they had the matter completely under control, the old issue of "to spank or not to spank" comes to the surface.

The mother of seven says spanking keeps children close to reality.

Another authority who has no children but has studied their ways for years declares that what parents

SCHUMANN GROUP WILL BE PLAYED

The programme which Ogretta McNeil is to present at the Empress Hotel on Tuesday evening is one of unusual interest.

Among the items are two by that "Poet of the Piano," Robert Schumann. These are two numbers taken from the "Fantasies" Opus 12, entitled "Traumens Wirren" and "In der Nacht."

These, in common with Schumann's other smaller piano works, were received their poetic titles after they were completed. The "dream visions" of the former number, and the hobgoblin forms which seem to hover around "In der Nacht" never fall in their appeal to even the least poetic of natures.

Chinese President's Son Meets Trouble on Marrying Dime Store Clerk

Columbus, O., July 19.—Troubles piled up to-day on James Lin, son of China's president, and his bride, former clerk in a Columbus dime store.

From Cincinnati and Washington came word that immigration officials are investigating his case. From Lin's own mouth came:

"I am very unhappy because neither of us can cook."

Lin also was confronted by unfounded reports, which he promptly denied, that he had previously been married and had children in China.

But despite his trouble, Lin smiled broadly at his bride, the former Viola Brown, as he remarked:

"I can't cook. She can boil water, but can't fry eggs. I'm afraid she will burn the coffee."

Recent Weddings

MATTHEWS—GARDNER

In the sun-filled drawing-room of what will be their future home on Pemberton Road, Miss Dorothy Gardner and Mr. G. Spence Matthews were married at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

About forty guests assembled to hear the ceremony performed by Rev. J. Hood.

The bride and groom stood within an arch of ivy and sheathed daisies, accompanied by Dorothy Austin, a namesake of the bride, as bridesmaid, and Thomas Catterall who officiated as best man.

Mr. D. W. Hanbury gave away the bride, who wore a most becoming and dainty frock of Nile green organza with a smart shoulder cape finished with a frill of knife pleating and a standing Chinese collar. She wore a coronet of orange blossoms and buds.

The bridesmaid's organdie frock, in golden yellow, was trimmed with ruffles and hand-made flowers of yellow with blue centres.

The bride's bouquet comprised white carnations, pink sweet peas and long-stemmed bride roses tied with bows of white gauze. The bridesmaid's bouquet was of pink carnations and sweet peas tied with pink gauze.

The lower floor of the house was decorated throughout with pastel shades of pink, mauve, blue and yellow.

The refreshments, served from a beautifully-decorated table, carried out the same color scheme. An ornate wedding cake, topped by a bouquet of exquisite bride roses in crisp buds, was cut by the bride.

Assisting in serving the refreshments were Mrs. E. G. Markland and the Misses M. and K. Sparrowhawk, Winnie Gardner, Betty Austin and Peggy McDonald.

The many lovely gifts attested to the popularity of the couple. One of the outstanding gifts was a complete set of flat silver presented by the "boys" of the MacGavin Baking Co., with whom the bride had been associated as bookkeeper and secretary for a number of years.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthews left on the Seattle boat for their honeymoon, which may take them as far afield as Los Angeles. The bride's going-away costume was a chic combination of beige tulle and suit and chocolate brown satin blouse with brown fox fur and all accessories in brown.

Among the guests were Mesdames R. Sparrowhawk, F. Van Sickle, P. Kewley, A. M. MacKay, M. W. Moody, T. Smith, G. R. MacDonald, D. W. Hanbury, G. Scott-Burritt, Messrs T. Catterall, J. D. Matthews, D. W. Hanbury, J. Edward, Geo. Austin, E. L. Stock, J. W. Booth, D. Newell, T. Holmes, E. Hanbury and Rev. J. Hood.

BUCKNER—STEVENS

The wedding took place at the Ladychith United Church, Tuesday, July 9, of Margaret Dale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Stevens at the Diamond Crossing, to John, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Buckner of the city. Rev. C. McDiarmid officiated.

the groom, was maid-of-honor in a long dress of powder-blue organza, with pink and white accessories. Her bouquet was of rosebuds, carnations and fern.

Mr. Eric Knight of Chemainus was best man and Beverly Hunter of Nanaimo, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

During the ceremony, Miss Martha Ferguson played the bridal music, the wedding march as the bride entered the church with her attendants and "I Love You Truly" during the signing of the register.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, with relatives and intimate friends of the couple in attendance. The table was centred with a beautiful three-tier wedding cake amid summer blossoms. Rev. C. McDiarmid proposed a toast to the bride, which was suitably responded to.

Leaving the happy couple departed for a tour of the upper island and on their return will make their home at the Diamond Crossing.

Out of town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Little, Miss Jean Little, Mrs. May Hunter, Miss Beverly Hunter, Mrs. Albert Hunter and Mr. Blackstaff, all of Nanaimo.

KENDRICK—PINEO

Port Alberni, July 19.—One of the summer's prettiest weddings took place Wednesday evening at St. Alban's Church, when Rev. Glen Stevenson united in marriage Marie Evelyn, elder daughter of Mr. Pineo and the late Holmes DeWolf Pineo, and Mr. Hall Kendrick, elder son of Mrs. M. Mack of North Vancouver and the late William Kendrick of Denver, Colorado.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Lew A. Pineo, wore a gown of blue silk tulle embroidered with silver, over satin, and a small hat of blue crepe with short veil attached. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and sweet peas.

Two little cousins of the bride, Miss Jacquelin and Miss Mary Pineo, were flower girls, dressed alike in pink organdie frocks of Victorian design, with poke bonnets, and carried old-fashioned bouquets of blue sweet peas.

Miss Betty Pineo was the bridesmaid, wearing a frock of pink organdie, with white mohair hat. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and sweet peas. Mr. Verne Kendrick supported his brother and Mr. Ernie McDonald and Mr. Wally Boyes acted as ushers.

Following the service a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, when Mrs. Pineo and Mrs. Mack received the guests.

Pink roses were used throughout the rooms and the bride's table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake, embedded in pink tulle and flanked by small vases of pink rosebuds. Later dancing was enjoyed at the Reglar Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendrick left for Seattle, where the honeymoon will be spent, the bride traveling in a white cloth swag with small hat and accessories. On their return they will make their home in Port Alberni.

The Sons and Daughters of England annual picnic will be held to Newcastle Island on Sunday, July 21. Buses leave S.O.E. Hall, Broad Street, from 9 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. Members wishing to make reservations for themselves and friends are requested to phone lodge secretary as soon as possible.

AGED POETESS IS HONORED

Writer of "Curfew Shall Not Ring To-night" at Birthday Party

Associated Press
San Diego, Calif., July 19.—Sixty-nine years ago, in Litchfield, Mich., a sixteen-year-old girl read a story, "Love and Loyalty," which appeared in a magazine (Peterson's). She was inspired by the story.

She went into a bedroom of her home and on a slate wrote a poem. She was ready to erase the writing when her mother asked to read it. Impressed by the poem, the mother asked the girl to write it on paper. It was submitted to a newspaper for publication, but the author received no compensation.

At the exposition here yesterday its author, Rose Hartwick Thorpe, was honored at a reception celebrating her eighty-fifth birthday anniversary. The poem which the little girl wrote on her slate—and nearly erased—was: "Curfew shall not ring to-night."

GRANDFATHER GIVES BRIDE AWAY

In one of the most picturesque country weddings of the year, Nancy Heckscher became the bride of Theodore H. Price Jr., at Lattinstown, L.I. She is shown entering the church on the arm of her grandfather, August Heckscher, well-known U.S. philanthropist, who gave her away.

Gay London Season Ends

Brilliant Royal Court Marks Formal Closing; Romance Of Stage and Peerage

(From our Own Correspondent)
London—Once again streams of cars have waited outside Buckingham Palace, bearing their precious loads of be-feathered young women to make their bow at Court.

Once again the crowds of curious sightseers have lined the Mall, watching the slow procession and giving vent to appreciative—or rather uncomplimentary—remarks.

For the last Courts of the season have been held this week, and the last "debutantes of 1935" have emerged properly into the world.

About 800 guests attended the Court, which was held by the Queen alone, the King still being at Sandringham. In his absence the Duke of Kent acted as escort to Her Majesty when the Royal procession moved across the gold and white throne room to a dais, on which a single golden throne had been placed.

Grouped around Her Majesty in the royal circle were the Duchess of York, Lord Carnarvon and Lady Maud Carnarvon, Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone, and Major Henry and Lady Mary Abel Smith.

One of the starred-at and picturesque figures there was Amir Saud, Crown Prince of Saudi Arabia, in his magnificent eastern robes. When he entered, he was at once led by officials of the Lord Chamberlain's department to a place on the royal dais.

As the trembling—in many cases—young ladies made their curtsies before the Queen, the band of the Welsh Guards played.

Among those presented was Miss Helen Jacobs, the famous American tennis star. In order to be present personally she played her match at Wimbledon at an earlier hour than was announced, and at once dashed off to London to put on her white dress for the great occasion.

BRUSSELS—FOR LUNCH
To Brussels for lunch and the International Exhibition and back in London for dinner—that is now possible.

This occasion was the inaugural flight of a new thrice-daily air service between London, Ostend and the Belgian capital.

Leaving soon after breakfast, it took an hour to drive to one of the airports nearest to London—only half an hour short of the time it next took your correspondent to step on to Belgian soil. Air travelers justly call it the longest part of the journey.

The sun seemed to have deserted the world. But the pilot knew where to find the coasting light of the English fields and farmhouses, the plane climbed into the clouds, through and above them into brilliant sunshine with blue sky above.

And then it flew serenely on over a mountainous white sea of cloud while ships were heaving and lurching on the channel somewhere thousands of feet below.

It was obligingly clear as we passed over the Belgian coast at Ostend. This resort, complete with its Casino, is becoming quite a rendezvous for British visitors by air. Soon after we found Brussels like London, without sun.

Belgium's recognition of our visit as another link in international sentiment as well as transport was personified by the Minister of Transport, who welcomed the plane's arrival.

He was easily distinguishable by an enormous wide-brimmed black hat. Film cameras purred from car tops, and press photographers crouched for position as the passengers stepped from the air liner.

Lunch followed at the Hotel Astoria. Afterwards the passengers were escorted round the Brussels International Exhibition—another Wembley, one might say.

On our way back to the airport, our hosts were anxious that we should "see" Brussels. We did—along the famous cobbled streets, where bareheaded residents always seem to have time to watch the world from top floor windows. Meanwhile, continental Jehu motorists tore by on what always appears to be the wrong side.

Clear weather on the return flight gave us an excellent view of the Thames as we flew up it from the coast towards our home airport. And so we landed again—in time for dinner.

EARL'S ROMANCE
There was a buzz of conversation at all cocktail and dinner parties one day this week, for the late editions of the evening papers came out with the headlines "Earl Secretly Marries Actress."

It was Earl Poulett, and his bride was pretty Miss Oriel Ross, the actress who played Catherine of Russia in "Caesar's Wife."

The only people who were present at the wedding were the bridegroom's mother and sister, Mrs. C. B. Cochran, who gave the bride away, and two friends of the bridegroom.

By a remarkable coincidence, in 1906 Lord Poulett's parents were married in the same church—St. Paul's, Knightsbridge—in exactly similar circumstances.

The late Lord Poulett was young, his wife was the well-known actress, Miss Sylvia Storey, and there was nobody at the wedding except for one or two friends.

The romance of the present couple began at a party after a West End theatrical first night, when a mutual friend introduced them to each other. Lord Poulett—George to his friends—is well known in London for his unconventional dress fashions.

NOTED CLIMBER DIES

New York, July 19 (Associated Press).—Miss Annie Smith Peck, eighty-four, noted as a mountain climber and one of the early leaders in the fight for women's suffrage, died late yesterday after an illness of two weeks.

EMBASSY REFUSES TO HEAR WOMEN

London, July 19.—Leaders of the women's movement were indignant today at refusal by the German embassy here to receive a delegation of English women to protest against the "anti-feminist policy" of the third reich.

The scheduled protest was to have been made to German ambassador Leopold von Moltke, to-day, but last night the embassy announced the delegation would not be received because the reception had been announced before the embassy had given its consent.

FOUR LOSE LIVES
Causapascal, Que., July 18 (Canadian Press).—Two women and two children were killed in an automobile accident at Amqui, Que., late yesterday. It was learned here to-day. When the automobile got out of control and turned over on a steep hill, Mrs. Joseph Lefrancois, fifty-seven, Mrs. Raoul Ouellet, twenty, and two children of Joseph Ouellet of Causapascal, a boy (three) and a girl (six months) were crushed to death.

HER DIVORCE

Marking back to the recent sensational "wife swapping" charges involved in the divorce battle between Walter Emerson and his wife, Jane, in which the two Sewells rounded out a strange marital quadrangle, Mrs. Sewell added:

"I think Mrs. Keaton will be very sorry she started anything like this. I've fought all this time to protect my good name and I am not going to stop now."

Mrs. Keaton's petition charged she found her fun-making husband and Mrs. Sewell together in a Santa Barbara county hotel last July 4, and they remained there for three days before returning here.

The Keatons were married October 21, 1933, at Ventura, Cal., following his divorce from Natalie Talmadge, sister of Norma and Constance Talmadge of screen fame.

Sending your furs to storage during the summer is an economy that you will be glad next fall to have practiced. Even your cloth coats and suits will do better in storage than out, unless you are prepared to take many precautions with them. Divorced from ex-King George of Greece on grounds of desertion in a secret hearing at Bucharest, ex-Queen Elizabeth was reported preparing to become a farmer on the $3,500,000 estate she recently purchased. She has resumed her former title of Princess Elizabeth of Hohenzollern.

MARITAL SCRAP GETS WORSE

Buster Keaton New Figure in Complicated Hollywood Tangle

Associated Press
Los Angeles, July 19.—The aging but agile figure of Buster Keaton yesterday had been suddenly bounced into the already multi-tangled domestic affairs of the wealthy Sewell family of Beverly Hills.

Mrs. Keaton's husband's name into the embattled Sewell affairs when she unexpectedly filed suit for divorce and popped a $300,000 heart balm suit at Mrs. Leah Clamptt Sewell for allegedly stealing her mate's love.

"Ridiculous," retorted Mrs. Sewell, sitting at the time in a superior courtroom listening to arguments in her own marital litigation against her millionaire husband, Barton W. Sewell.

Marking back to the recent sensational "wife swapping" charges involved in the divorce battle between Walter Emerson and his wife, Jane, in which the two Sewells rounded out a strange marital quadrangle, Mrs. Sewell added:

"I think Mrs. Keaton will be very sorry she started anything like this. I've fought all this time to protect my good name and I am not going to stop now."

Oak Bay Gardens Are Given Praise

Five garden owners of Oak Bay, exclusive of Uplands residents, whose beautiful gardens received the plaudits of a special beautification committee of the Victoria Horticultural Society, will receive the congratulations of the Oak Bay Council for preserving the beauty of their homes.

They are: F. Ingram, 2440 Cranmore Road; S. Gunter, 180 Beach Drive; J. Lee, 3491 Central Avenue; C. A. Griffiths, 1360 St. Patrick Street; and C. S. Arnold, 1466 Victoria Avenue.

Members of the council felt home owners in the municipality should be encouraged in beautification of the neighborhood.

ANOTHER PARTY AT SASEENOS

Thirty-three children and fourteen mothers form the party which are now enjoying two weeks' holiday at the Fred Landsberg Sunshine Camp, Saseenos.

The first party returned to town this week, brown and happy. The gain in weight among the children was very satisfactory and is being consistently maintained with each group going to camp.

During fine weather, when the children can be in the woods or on the beach, all goes well, but the need for a wooden recreation hut has been felt this season more than in previous years. It is practically impossible to keep the youngsters amused, and let their mothers have a rest from responsibility, when the whole camp occupies the main dining hall, as is at present necessary when it is raining.

The committee feel it is unwise to use funds contributed for general maintenance for the erection of a new building. Therefore, a special plea is being made for gifts toward a fund to be used for this specific purpose.

Contributions, both for the general and the special fund may be sent either to the Friendly Help Welfare Association, 1234 Pandora Avenue, or to the Empire Realty Company, 1008 Broad Street. Funds should be plainly marked as to the section for which they are to be used.

SCHOOLGIRL STYLE IS VOGUE
Clothes that make you look like a little schoolgirl are smart right now. Skirts are fuller, often with box pleats all the way around and, for daytime, they are twelve instead of ten inches from the floor.

To go with them, there are flat-heeled sandals with centre straps that closely resemble the patent leather party slippers you had when you were five.

Even flower accessories are designed to make you appear youthful. For evening, you can pin a cluster of forget-me-nots flat on the top of your head or, if you like, wear a spray of diminutive pinks at your waistline, matching it up with small floral earrings.

More than 1,700 merchant vessels now carry the American flag.

CHAFING
To relieve chafing, apply cooling, soothing Mentholatum to the irritated skin.

SMALL ALLOWANCE
Philadelphia, July 19 (Associated Press).—John Hauer, twenty-three-year-old heir to $40,000, has agreed to give his mother $2 a week from the estate. Hauer told Judge Theodore Rosen yesterday his mother deserted her family and he blamed his father's death in 1928 on the circumstance.

Canadian Oarsmen Win At Princeton

Princeton, N.J., July 19.—Oarsmen representing Toronto and Philadelphia won the lion's share of honors on the Carnegie yesterday as more than a hundred "regatta" swimmers opened the sixty-third annual regatta of the United States Association of Amateur Oarsmen.

Philadelphia's entries captured six of the nine events, while Canada's single sculls champion, Charles A. Whipple, and his Dominion rival, John P. Goughen, both of Toronto, won their heats to qualify for the final to-day of the G. W. Wilkes trophy, emblematic of the association's single sculls championship. All races were over a mile and one-quarter, straightaway.

MAHONEY WINS OVER BROWNING

Philadelphia, July 19.—Danno Mahoney, heavyweight wrestling champion, pinned the veteran Jim Browning in twenty-four minutes and seven seconds at the Arena's outdoor stadium yesterday evening.

The 218-pound matman from Ireland used the flying body scissors, with which he took the title from Jim London less than a month ago, to flatten Browning, who tipped the scales at 240.

South Africa Mat Fans Just As Bad

Bloemfontein, Union of South Africa, July 19.—Police were called out yesterday evening to protect Joe Gotch, United States wrestler, from a serious mauling at the hands of an angry crowd which swarmed into the ring after Gotch had knocked the referee unconscious during a bout here.

Feeling run so high at Gotch's rough tactics that fighting began among a part of the 2,000 spectators.

BUDGE RULES HOT FAVORITE

Californian Expected to Defeat Henkel in Davis Cup Interzone Final

London, July 19.—On the powerful strokes of Donald Budge, youthful Californian, rested today the hopes of the United States to turn back Germany in the tennis battle for the right to meet England in the Davis Cup finals.

Budge, who in one month of foreign competition has skyrocketed from just a good doubles player to the No. 1 singles assignment on the American team, will meet Heiner Henkel, Germany's No. 2 player, in the opening engagement of the inter-zone finals to-morrow. The west coast red-head is the overwhelming favorite to send the Americans away to a flying start.

Once Budge and Henkel have settled their argument, Wilmer Allison, the United States' No. 1 ranking player, will meet Baron Gottfried von Cramm, ace of the Germans, and runner-up to Fred Perry for the Wimbledon crown.

India Marksman Score Surprise Win In Kolapore Cup At Bisley

THE SPORTS MIRROR

BEFORE Paul Pirone gets that middleweight title battle with champion Teddy Yarros, he will have to tangle with Frankie Battaglia, the handsome Winnipeg Italian who is coming on like a house afire, after being partially burned out a couple of years ago. There would be a battle of right hands. And it may come off before long.

Pirone fought himself into top contention in the Cleveland "other evening" in scoring a close decision over Eddie (Babe) Rizzo, the Syracuse socker who muddled up the division as an unknown some months ago by hitting the champion so hard that he broke the champion's ankle. But on the same bill the critics saw a right-shooter, Battaglia, who used it to subdue Lew Halper, Newark. They saw it raise puffs under Halper's eyes, cut his face, render his body, and finally caught a fleeting glimpse of it as it flashed under Halper's heart. Lifted him off his pins and deposited him on the canvas four feet away.

Battaglia revealed in that fight a blow punching enough to hurt any middleweight. Comparing it with the power in Pirone's wanted fist displayed later in the evening, it was apparent that Battaglia had the edge. In knocking out Halper in the fifth frame, Battaglia accomplished a feat that Pirone failed to do in two ten-round engagements.

The probable reason for that is found in the fact that Battaglia is a much better boxer than Pirone. He has a left that is only slightly less potent than his right, and he can get about on his feet with agility.

Pirone, on the other hand, is practically a one-handed fighter. The Cleveland cluster ploys along much in the manner of Johnny Black, willing to take plenty of pokes to get over the dream producer.

Against fighters who can fence considerably, and flash a stiff left hand in his face, Pirone is a weakling. He kept his befuddled with a straight southpaw in the face, and Battaglia's is no less classy.

Battaglia is on his second climb up the ladder. He progressed brilliantly in 1933 and '33, and won a crack at Ben Joby's crown.

The clowning New Yorker knocked out Frankie in the twelfth round, and the Canadian seemed to slip down the hill, he married, and headed for oblivion.

In '34, however, he staked a comeback, and has been on the way ever since.

All paper records indicate that the Winnipeg wallop is a better opponent for Yarros than is Paul. He knocked out the Cleveland better when he was at his best, tipped him over in March, 1934, in the first round of a battle in Milwaukee.

Both fighters have come far since then. Pirone to a spot where he is considered by many to be No. 1. Owens will have to run in regular time, or close to it and broad jump somewhere around the record distance any time he beats the eastern negro.

There is a wide contrast in the styles of the two sophomores.

Owens' ankles along as smoothly that his remarkable feats appear effortless. . . . Peacock has a high knee action almost like a galloped horse, yet gets his foot on the gas quicker than the brown buckeye bullet.

Glenn Cunningham is badly in need of the rest which he plans to take until he returns to track warfare to compete in three indoor races in New York next winter.

Defeat Canada By Lone Point In Great Match

Capture Team Shoot for First Time in Sixty-four Years With Record Total

EIGHT CANADIANS IN KING'S FINAL

Canadian Press
Bisley Camp, Eng., July 19.—For the first time in the sixty-four years of the match, India to-day won the Rajah of Kolapore's Imperial Challenge Cup, greatest team shoot of the Empire meeting of the National Rifle Association. Canada, defending the trophy, lost it by a single point after one of the grimmest battles the Kolapore has ever seen.

India wound up the three ranges with an aggregate of 1,147, a record for the match. Canada had 1,145, England 1,136, Guernsey 1,110 and Jersey 1,101.

The Canadians were four points behind at the 300 yards, two points behind at the 500 yards, and still a point behind when the match was completed at 600 yards.

Canada thus loses both major imperial cups of the great meeting, yesterday having lost possession of the MacKinnon Challenge Cup to England.

Col. G. W. Gibson, Hamilton, topped the Canadian individual scoring with totals of 145 out of a possible 150. Capt. A. B. Coulter, Ottawa, and Q.M.S. Alex Parnell, Verdun, had 144; Lieut. James Bos, Montreal, 143; Capt. A. W. Hunt, Winnipeg, and Sgt. C. Iddolls, Calgary, 142; and Lieut. P. J. Martinson, La Tuque, Que., 141.

KING'S PRIZE

Eight Canadians qualified in the second stage of the King's Prize to-day, and two more were given another chance to get into to-morrow's final stage of the classic.

Scores of 143 qualified to-day, and thirty-seven of the 300 to-morrow's having scores of 142 were to shoot off for nine remaining places in the "King's hundred." Seven former winners of the supreme award for the military marksmen gained the entry to the final—Miss Marjorie Foster (only woman ever to win the King's Prize), Cpl. H. G. Burr, Sgt. Pulton (a three-time winner), Capt. C. H. Vernon, C. F. Bayly, D. E. Woods and Capt. J. A. Barlow, winner last year.

Fifteen-year-old Cadet Ralph Barr, Glasgow, who qualified in the first stage, went out to-day with a creditable score of 141, two below the qualifying mark.

The 300 best scorers out of the 1,032 crack military shots who entered the classic on Wednesday to-day fired at 500, 600 and 800 yards, and the best 100 of these go into to-morrow's final stage. Thirteen of the eighteen Canadians had qualified for the second stage.

No Canadians posted possible at the first distance and none at the last.

Canadian scoring in the second stage of the King's Prize follows:

Capt. A. B. Coulter, Ottawa, 49-50-48-147.
Lieut. P. H. Martinson, La Tuque, Que., 48-50-48-146.
Lieut. Neal Dow, St. John, 49-49-46-144.
C.Q.M.S. Alex Parnell, Verdun, 47-50-47-144.
Lieut. H. D. Proctor, Ottawa, 47-50-47-144.
Lieut.-Col. C. W. Gibson, Hamilton, 48-49-48-143.
Sergeant F. Wallace, Mount Dennis, Ont., 48-49-46-147.
Lieut. A. F. Williams, Ottawa, 48-48-47-143.
(Above qualified for final stage)
Capt. A. W. Hunt, Winnipeg, 48-49-45-142.
Corporal E. E. Wright, Montreal, 48-48-46-142.
Sergeant C. Iddolls, Calgary, 48-49-47-141.
Sergeant Matthew Penman, Montreal, 48-47-46-141.
Lieut.-Col. F. W. Upton, Toronto, 47-47-45-139.
Teams of eight fired ten shots a man at 300, 500 and 600 yards ranges in the Kolapore.

The Canadian defenders were Coulter, Dow, Parnell, Gibson, Iddolls, Hunt, Bos and Martinson. Dow and

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS

—By John Hix

Thomas Chatterton, young English boy of the middle eighteenth century, possessed a genius that led to his downfall. He was too young to write the works he claimed he wrote, the critics said—the beauty of his verse could not possibly come from a boy still in his early teens. Chatterton, brooding and unhappy from his rebores, took his own life when he was eighteen years old. What masterpieces he could have produced if kindness and understanding had been shown him, no one can say.

Chatterton was born at Bristol, England, in 1752. At eight, he was sent to school at Colston where, at the age of twelve, he began his writing career. He delighted in poring over ancient manuscripts, and his inspiration seemed to lie in half-forgotten poems of the lives of the fifteenth century. He did a curious thing in his early writing—he penned pieces in antique spelling and phonology, ascribed them to mythical writers of centuries before, and passed them off as genuine.

His writings showed a rare beauty that placed them among the finest in English literature. Some of them he sent to Walpole who, accepting his story that they were from ancient manuscripts just discovered, praised them for their beauty. When Walpole and others discovered that they were modern, and written by a mere boy, they abruptly forgot the beauty of the writings and rebuked the boy for misleading them.

Three months before he was eighteen years old, Chatterton retired to his attic room, destroyed whatever of his manuscripts he could find, and committed suicide by arsenic poisoning.

YOUNGSTER IS DIVING CHAMP

Eleven-year-old Mary Hoerger Lifts U.S. Springboard Title

New York, July 19.—The men in the press box, probably most of the 5,000 gathered under the blazing sun around the big pool, held their breath and muttered: "Now, she just won't try anything tough."

So the spindly mite of the diving board, Mary Hoerger, eleven years old now, twelve next month, bravely went into the toughest diving convulsion of them all, a two-and-a-half forward somersault.

Over and over she whirled while the big crowd gasped. Then she straightened out, knifed into the water with scarcely a ripple. The crowd burst out in a spontaneous roar of delight, and the three-meter springboard diving championship went to Mary Hoerger, Miami Beach, Fla., youngest and certainly the smallest athlete ever to hold a United States championship at anything but marble shooting.

MISS KNIGHT WINS

Mary sent the four-day women's swimming championship off with a spectacular push yesterday, and Lenore Knight, Homestead, Pa., greatest of United States distance swimmers, kept the sensations rolling under the blazing sky above Manhattan Beach's thirty-metre pool.

The husky twenty-three-year-old Pennsylvania girl opened her triple title defense by swimming a mile in 24 minutes 20.4 seconds, faster than any American woman ever swam it before. Miss Knight held the previous record of 24:34.1, set last year when she won the mile, 880 and 440-

TILICUMS AND EAGLES CLASH

Clubs Start Play in the Second-half Schedule; Jones And Murray to Pitch

With both teams at full strength and eager to chalk up a victory in the new second-half schedule, Tillicums and Eagles will clash at the Athletic Park this evening in a scheduled Senior Baseball League fixture, starting at 6 o'clock. The clubmen are still smarting from the recent defeat suffered at the hands of the Eagles, and are more than anxious to turn the tables on the bird-men.

Lloyd Jones, star southpaw pitcher for the Tillicums, will take the mound for them. He has a goodly assortment of slow and fast balls, and with the proper support, should hold the heavy-hitting Eagles in check. Harry Holmes will complete the battery.

Manager Dave Easler of the Eagles, figures on sending young Lonnie Murray in to do the pitching for the Eagles. Murray formerly played for the Stocker's club. Henry Woodford is the regular catcher, and will probably start as Murray's battery teammate. Wally Scott, former Stocker's catcher, but now with the birdmen, may get the assignment.

BLACK HELEN MEETS OMAHA

Run With Other Leading Horses in $30,000 Arlington Classic

Chicago, July 19.—A little brown filly named Black Helen, cast an ominous shadow across Omaha's path to-day in his march to the 1935 three-year-old championship of the United States turf.

They will meet to-morrow with other of the best American three-year-olds in the $30,000 added Arlington classic at Arlington Park, with Omaha, if victorious, coming into undisputed possession of the three-year-old title. Indications are that more than 40,000 spectators, biggest crowd of the year, will witness the race.

Black Helen, owned by Col. Edward R. Bradley, Lexington, Ky., is rated as the most dangerous challenger to Omaha. The fleet little daughter of Black Toney-la Troienne, has won six of her seven starts impressively this season.

Line Up Team For Navy Meet

Handicaps For To-morrow Set

Two races and a high jump competition for men and one sprint and a jump for girls will feature the regular weekly handicaps staged for local runners at the High School grounds to-morrow afternoon.

The men's events will include 220 and 330 yard runs and a high jump, while the girls will flash over the 100 yards route and will participate in a high jump.

The events are scheduled to start at 2:30 o'clock.

Canadian Sailors Look Over Prospects for Races at Macdonald Park on August 14; Start Intensive Training Soon

With a list of good performers on hand, ready to go into intensive training when the ships complete their short trips at the end of the month, the Canadian Navy should have several very fair athletes in shape for the Navy Week sports here on Wednesday, August 14.

As for the sailors have not had much opportunity to develop their track and field strength, owing to the disrupting influences of cruises, but they should have a good two weeks for intensive work before the event is staged at Macdonald Park and should be able to more than hold their own against visiting blue jackets who will also participate in the meet.

Several sprinters have been lined up tentatively for the Canadian Navy team.

They will include Jack Mathews, senior navy champion last year, and J. Paul, holder of the junior title.

Mathews will go after the 100 and 220-yard dash honors and the hurdles, while Paul will join him in the two sprints and take in the quarter-mile run as well.

W. Hilbert will seek laurels in the century dash, the hurdles and the high jump, while George Stagg, husky all-around navy athlete, will try for the hundred, the hurdles and the broad jump.

MIDDLE DISTANCE MEN

Cedric Smith and R. Caldwell will take in the longest events, the former entering for the quarter and half mile and the latter the same events as well as the mile.

Bruce Robinson, star fullback of the Navy's rugby team, will seek broad and high jump points, while W. Smith will also try the broad jump and the century dash.

Following tryouts prior to the Navy Week meet, others may be added to the team which, as it stands, should provide good competition both for the visiting sailors and the more highly-trained local Y.M.C.A. boys.

OLD-TIMERS PLAY AGAIN

Will Meet Commercial Baseball League Team in Return Game Next Wednesday

Fred McGinnis and his old-timers' ball team will take the field for the second time season next Wednesday evening at the Athletic Park. The veterans will engage in a return game with an all-star nine from the Commercial League. Last week the old-timers made their first appearance and held the youngsters to a 7 to 7 tie.

In their first performance the veterans were unlucky not to win, a wild pitch in the ninth inning allowing the tying run to cross the plate with two away. With the exception of the first-inning the old-timers played good ball and surprised the large crowd of fans with their exhibition.

FORBES TO PLAY

For Wednesday's game Manager McGinnis has strengthened his lineup by securing the services of Norm Forbes and Roy Copas. Both have been out to practices and will be ready to get into action next week. It is possible that Forbes will take over the shortstop position in the absence from the city of Jack McKenzie. Copas will play outfield.

The old-timers will hold another workout to-night at the Athletic Park at 6:30 o'clock and again on Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

CANADIAN NET STARS DO WELL

Register Victories in Scottish Championships; Watt Beaten

Peelies, Scotland, July 19.—Bobby Murray, youngster from Montreal, went into the fourth round of men's singles in the Scottish tennis championships yesterday with a 6-1, 6-4 win over R. M. Turnbull.

His teammate, Laird Watt, also from Montreal, went out, however, after three sets with the powerful I. G. Collins, who won 2-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The Canadians won third-round matches in both men's and women's doubles. Watt and Murray defeated MacMeeken and Sommerville 7-5, 6-2, while the Misses Caroline Deacon and Eleanor Young, from Vancouver, were beating Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Woodhawk 6-3, 6-5.

Laird Watt and Miss Deacon teamed up to go through three rounds in succession in the mixed doubles. In turn, they defeated Crabbe and Miss Bingham, 6-4, 6-3; Turnbull and Mrs. Turnbull, 6-2, 9-7, and Hill and Anita Linna, 8-6, 6-2.

The other Canadian mixed doubles pair, Murray and Miss Young, was beaten in the second round by Fuhr, South Africa, and Miss King, 9-11, 6-4, 5-1.

HELEN MOODY IS HURRYING HOME

London, July 19.—Hurry home "because Freddie will be furious," Mrs. Helen Willis Moody called for home on the liner George Washington yesterday still undecided whether she will compete in the Wightman Cup matches and national championships at Forest Hill, N.Y., next month.

"I honestly haven't decided," she told the Associated Press after a ten-day "hideout" from interviewers since her triumphant comeback at Wimbledon in the all-England championships.

"Right now I'm anxious to get back to San Francisco as quickly as possible because I've already stayed an extra week and Freddie will be furious."

The United States team is composed of Wilmer Allison, Donald Budge, John Van Ryn, Sidney Wood and Gene Mako. Allison and Budge will play the singles matches and Allison and Van Ryn the doubles. The following week the winner will play England in a challenge round. England holds the Davis trophy now.

Times of the broadcasts are not yet definite.

McLarnins Are Now Honolulu Visitors

Associated Press
Honolulu, July 19.—One week after their wedding day, James A. (Jimmy) McLarnin and his bride arrived yesterday for a five-week honeymoon.

McLarnin announced on arrival, that he would fight Barney Rose again next November, in New York, for the welterweight championship. He turned a deaf ear to a Honolulu promoter's attempt to arrange a fight for him here.

Mr. and Mrs. McLarnin are living at a beach hotel during their island visit.

Crucial Series This Week-end For Major Baseball Leaders

Giants To Invade St. Louis; Yanks Entertain Detroit

Former Whip Cincinnati to Hold Four-game Lead in National League

YANKEES HAVE MARGIN SLICED

Barring unforeseen happenings over the coming week-end, there are indications of exciting times in the major league pennant races early next week when New York's two leaders encounter their nearest rivals.

Both Giants and the Yankees have been watching their leads dwindle steadily in the last couple of weeks, and they may be even smaller Monday when the Detroit Tigers go to New York to take on Yanks and Giants invade St. Louis for a bout with Cardinals.

The Yankee margin was again clipped to one and a half games yesterday when they came out on the short end of a 4 to 1 score after an eleven-inning battle with the cellar-dwelling St. Louis Browns, while Giants escaped from Cincinnati with a four-game lead, and nothing much else after they had gone twelve frames to beat the Reds 5 to 3 and gain an even break for the series.

Before Monday Yanks have three more encounters with St. Louis, while Giants take on the third-place Chicago Cubs, who have been acting quite tame lately.

TAIL TO HIT
Yanks failure to bunt their hits off Dick Coffman cost them the decision, for Charley Ruffing pitched five-hit ball for ten frames before he finally weakened and was touched for the odd run. Then Pat Malone forced in two more tallies with passes. Giants worked just the other way, scoring twice in the ninth with the aid of two errors and a passed ball, then bunting out two more off relief flinger Don Brennan in the twelfth.

Tigers, meanwhile, slashed into Yanks lead by bowling over Boston Red Sox 5 to 6 as Schoolboy Rowe pitched a five-hit game and nipped his mound rival, Wes Ferrell, for three important blows. Cardinals, still playing as if every pitch meant a pennant, rang up their fourteenth consecutive victory, beating the Boston Braves 13 to 3 to keep pace with Giants.

Paul Dean did the flinging, giving five hits, while Burgess Whitehead led the eighteen-hit attack with four home runs and Bill Delaney and Pepper Martin socked homers.

Cubs also put on a hitting spree to remain four games behind Cards as they trounced Phillies 11 to 3 with the aid of circuit swats by Chuck Klein, Augie Galan and Frank DeMarco, and some brilliant relief hurling by Charley Root. Brooklyn moved back into fifth place ahead of Cincinnati by knocking off Pittsburgh Pirates for the fourth straight time, 5 to 3, as Ray Benge pitched four-hit ball until he was weakened in the ninth and Dutch Leonard finished. Washington Senators and Philadelphia Athletics rounded out a big day for the American League's second

Bahram Favored For St. Leger

London, July 19.—Bahram, winner of the Derby and owned by the Aga Khan, ruled favorite in yesterday's call-over of betting odds for the St. Leger Stakes, to be run at Doncaster, September 11.

Bahram was quoted at 5 to 1. Other odds were as follows: Field Trial, 11 to 3; Assination, 20 to 1; Flaxey, 25 to 1.

division clubs, the former trimming the Chicago White Sox 6 to 4 with a thirteen-hit attack behind Buck Newsum, the latter besting the Cleveland Indians 7 to 3 as Pinky Higgins clouted two homers, the second supplying the winning runs.

COAST LEAGUE
The San Francisco Missions are back in second place in the Coast League after enjoying a four-hour stay on top of the heap.

The Missions emerged on top after the pace-setting San Francisco Seals lost to Portland yesterday afternoon. In the evening Sacramento turned in a three-hit ball game for its first win of the week to beat the Missions 6 to 3, and pull the Reds back into second place.

San Francisco and Portland battled for twelve innings in their second overtime affair of the week before Portland won, 10 to 7.

"Goldie" Holt, Portland outfielder, got two four-baggers and a single, while Joe Di Maggio of the Seals ran his consecutive game hitting streak to twenty-five, with a single in the ninth.

Herb Harris, young Los Angeles southpaw, held Oakland to four scattered singles as the Angels evened the series by winning 5 to 0.

Howard Craghead and Frank Shellback put on a ding-dong pitching battle for seven innings, but Hollywood landed on Craghead in the eighth for nine hits and eight runs to defeat Seattle 10 to 1.

GOODMAN IS ELIMINATED

Former U.S. Open Golf Champion Defeated in Western Amateur Tourney

Colorado Springs, July 19.—Johnny Goodman, Omaha, Neb., and the defending champion, Zell Eaton, Oklahoma City, were blasted into the discard of the western amateur golf tournament late yesterday as Rodney Bliss, Omaha, the medalist, led the way into the thirty-six-hole quarter-finals.

Goodman, transmississippi champion and former United States open titleholder, was checked out by faulty putting on the back nine of his second-round match and the sub-par rally staged by his opponent, Dave Goldman, Dallas Tex., coming in. Goldman finished 2 up.

Eaton was sidetracked 5 and 3 by Gus Moreland, the former Texan, now hailing from Peoria, Ill. Bliss gained the quarter-finals by defeating Neil Smith, Dallas, 3 and 1.

OLD COUNTRY CRICKET

Yorkshire, 459 for eight, declared; Northamptonshire, 289 and 19 for three; at Harrogate. Hampshire, 205 and 16 for one; Nottinghamshire, 395 (Lilly 102); at Bournemouth. Close-of-play scores in other matches follow:

Three Top Softball Teams In Victories

Brunsdon's Boys, With Bert Waude's and Silent Glows Appear to Have Clinched Play-off Berths; Spencers Capture C Section Championship.

With only two more games to play in the schedule, it begins to look as though Brunsdon's Boys, Silent Glows and Bert Waude's are slated for the play-off series for the city championship in section A softball. The three leading teams came through with flying colors yesterday evening to strengthen their position at the top.

Bert Waude's practically eliminated the New Method Laundry nine, last year's city and island champions, from the title race, with a 10 to 3 victory. The former champions have sixteen points to their credit to date, six less than the jairdresses, and have three games still to play. The only possible way the New Method can make the play-offs is for Bert Waude's to drop their remaining two games while they win their three.

Brunsdon's practically clinched first place when they played true to form in defeating the Civic Staff at Bullen Park 9 to 5. Playing at Work Point Barracks, Army fell before the heavy slugging Silent Glows 17 to 10.

After dropping an 8 to 6 decision to the Laundry in a postponed game Wednesday night, Bert Waude's came back strong in their game at Athletic Park yesterday evening. They allowed the Laundry squad to take over a one-run lead at the end of the first inning. In the fourth inning the jairdresses drove S. Jones from the mound with a hitting barrage that netted them five runs for a 9 to 1 lead.

Another run in the eighth completed their scoring for the night. Archie McBride, pitching his third game in three days, had his opponents eating out of his hand after the first inning. It was not until the eighth frame that the New Method nine added to their lone run total with a couple of markers to make the final score: Bert Waude's 10, New Method Laundry 5.

Score by innings:
Bert Waude's..... 0 1 3 5 0 0 1 0—10
New Method Ldry 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 2—3
LOTS OF HITTING
Army and Silent Glows put on a regular slugfest in their game at Work Point, with the burnermen finally coming through on the right end of the score. Hitting the offerings of Turner all over the field, the soldiers jumped into a 5 to 3 lead at the end of the second inning. The Army made it 6 to 3 to end the fourth frame. Both squads went scoreless in the fifth-inning. After holding his opponents scoreless for three innings, Glendinning, Army pitcher, blew up. A home run by Jack O'Neil with the bases loaded at the end of the second inning gave Silent Glows the lead for the first time, and from then on they sailed home to an easy victory. Another circuit smash, with the bases empty, produced another run in this hectic inning, and before the soldiers could retire the side three more runners had crossed the plate for a total of eight runs in one inning.

Score by innings:
Silent Glows..... 2 0 0 0 3 3 0—17
Army..... 2 3 0 0 1 2 1 0—10
Batteries—Turner and Kennedy; Glendinning and Stewart.

Civic Staff gave a good account of themselves before losing 9 to 5 to the league-leading Brunsdon's Boys at Bullen Park, but they found the heavy hitting by Del Munroe, first sacker, and "Red" Palmer, pitcher, too much to contend with. Munroe smashed out a triple and two doubles while Palmer's wallop in the sixth inning was good for a home run.

Bert Simpson, speedball artist for Painters' Bruins, pitched masterly ball to shut out the Navy 13 to 0 at Admirals Road in a B section fixture. Simpson struck out eleven batters in seven innings and allowed only four runners to reach first base. The win gave the fuel men a stranglehold on second place and a chance of drawing up even with the league-leading Poodle Dog Cafe.

Painter's Bruins opened up with their heavy guns in the first inning, when "Forky" Andrews smashed out a home run with two men on bases to score three runs. Three more markers completed the scoring in this inning for the fuelmen.

The Navy boys were only able to hold their opponents scoreless in the fourth and fifth innings, although they replaced Davies, their starting pitcher, in favor of Chandler.

Score by innings:
Painter's Bruins..... 6 1 2 0 0 3 1—13
Navy..... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0
Batteries—B. Simpson and A. Kirkbride; Davies, Chandler and Kluse.

WIN CHAMPIONSHIP

Playing good ball all the way, Spencers captured the C section No. 1 championship when they defeated Hill's Corner 13 to 6 at Central Park. Ed Carr, on the mound for the department store boys, chalked up his fourteenth victory of the season. The new champions have made an enviable record during the season with fourteen victories, all of them gained behind Carr's pitching. Only one defeat mars an almost perfect record.

Rudson's Bay gained two points by default when the Revellers failed to put in an appearance.

Togo Cleaners trounced Strawberry Vale 16 to 6, while Harris's Cyclones won by default from Oak Bay in the two Junior League fixtures billed for yesterday evening.

BUDDY BAER IN KNOCKOUT WIN

Puts Al Delaney Away in Fourth After Suffering First Round Knockdown

Buffalo, N.Y., July 19.—Buddy Baer, giant younger brother of the former heavyweight champion, rallied from a first-round, no-count knockdown yesterday evening to gain a knockout victory over Al Delaney, aspiring Cleveland heavyweight, in thirty-four seconds of the fourth round.

Baer weighed 236½ and Delaney 190.

Delaney, only nineteen, and four inches shorter than his opponent, sent Baer to his knees with a left for no count soon after the first bell.

Buddy appeared bewildered, flailing away with both hands until he struck Delaney a low blow, giving the round to the Cleveland.

Baer crossed the plate for a total of eight runs in one inning.

Score by innings:

Californians In Complete Control

Hold Upper Hand in all Events in Western Canadian Tennis Championships at Vancouver; Canadians Make Bid For Doubles Crowns

Canadian Press
Vancouver, July 19.—With the western Canada grass courts men's singles and doubles tennis titles assured of a southern berth for another year, invading net stars from the United States Pacific Coast today turned their attention to the mixed doubles and women's doubles, where a quartette of Vancouver players remained Canada's lone representation in the tournament.

John Lurio, second seeded star from San Francisco and tourney favorite now that Worth Oswald, fellow Californian is on the sidelines as far as the singles are concerned, heads six other southerners and Wayne Sabin, Portland, in the quarter-final round.

With Lurio and Sabin are Dick Bennett and Gene Smith, Berkeley, Calif., meeting today in that order to decide the finalists for the title Mel Dranga, Seattle, won last year.

WOMEN'S EVENTS
Three more Californians hold down semi-final berths in the women's singles with Gussie Rasmussen, San Francisco, top ranked star, slated to meet Jean Milne, Vancouver, lone Canadian survivor. In one semi-final bracket, and Mrs. Catherine Rose, Los Angeles, and Margaret Osborne, youthful San Francisco player, tangling in the other half.

The two Milne sisters, Susie and Jean, only other all-Canadian threat to American dominance of the tournament, meet Mrs. Margaret Laird and Mrs. Rose in a doubles semi today, the winner to tackle Mrs. J. Rose, Vancouver, and Miss Osborne in the final Saturday. The latter pair downed the much thought of Rasmussen-Mrs. Gosses combination, 6-4, 7-5, yesterday to enter the final round.

Susie Milne, paired with Bob Pommer, San Francisco, yesterday for a 6-4, 5-7, 6-4 win over Mrs. Goss and Bennett for a spot in the mixed doubles semi, along with Jane Stanton, Los Angeles, and Sabin, Miss Rasmussen and Howard Blithen, San Jose, and Miss Osborne and Charles Weisner, Berkeley.

The men's doubles is strictly an American affair with Bennett and Paul Newton, U.S. intercollegiate doubles titleholders, favored to capture the crown. They meet Ray Casey, San Francisco, and John Law, Pasadena, in a semi-final match today, after taking the measure of Lloyd Budge, San Francisco, and Murio, 6-2, 6-0, yesterday.

Casey and Law beat another southern pair, Blithen and Ben Neiden, 6-3, 6-3, to enter the next to last round.

Gene Smith and Dranga are paired to meet Sabin and Ed Cooke, Portland team, in the other half. Smith and Dranga had an easy 6-3, 6-2 victory over Bob Pommer and Darrel Kelly yesterday, while Sabin and Cooke were taking a similar victory from Oswald and Weisner.

Yesterday's results follow:

MEN'S SINGLES
Fifth Round
Gene Smith, Berkeley, defeated Howard Blithen, San Jose, 6-0, 6-2.
Dick Bennett, Berkeley, defeated Paul Newton, Berkeley, 6-2, 5-7, 7-5.
John Lurio, San Francisco, defeated John Law, Pasadena, 9-7, 7-5.

MIXED DOUBLES
Second Round
Susie Milne, Vancouver, and Bob Pommer, San Francisco, defeated Mrs. Irene Flemming, Vancouver, and Walter Haas, San Francisco, 6-4, 6-4.
Mrs. Gosses, Berkeley, defeated Mrs. Catherine Rose, Los Angeles, and Ben Neiden, Berkeley, 5-7, 6-3, 6-1.

MEN'S DOUBLES
Quarter-finals
Bennett and Newton defeated Budge and Murio, 6-2, 6-3.
Casey and Law defeated Blithen and Neiden, 6-3, 6-3.
Smith and Dranga defeated Pommer and Kelly, 6-3, 6-2.
Sabin and Cooke defeated Oswald and Weisner, 6-3, 6-1.

Noted Professor Of Medicine Here

Dr. W. P. Caven, professor emeritus of the faculty of medicine in the University of Toronto, has arrived on the Coast on a vacation tour and is being greeted by many of his former pupils, who are now doctors in practice throughout the west. Since his retirement, Dr. Caven has been a consultant and as such has become known as one of the most eminent on the continent.

Mrs. Caven has come to the Coast with him at the Empress Hotel. Accompanying them on this trip is Billy Knowlson, who is a pupil at Upper Canada College.

Also here from Toronto are Dr. R. J. MacMillan and Mrs. MacMillan, with their two sons, Robert, who is a freshman in the University of Toronto, and Duke. Every minute possible during their stay in Victoria they have been spending on one of the golf courses. They will remain here until the first of next week when they leave on a tour to Alaska.

TOTEM POLE REPAINTED

Victoria's big Haida totem pole which adorns one part of Beacon Hill Park, has been re-repainted following repair work and painting.

The pole, according to W. A. Newcombe, formerly of the Museum and outstanding local authority on Coast Indians, was built about 1875. It was purchased in Massett, Queen Charlotte Island, by his father, the late Dr. C. F. Newcombe, for the provincial government. The totem pole was originally intended to adorn B.C. House in London, but was later given to the city by the government during the time of Sir Richard McBride.

The pole is one of the old type, differing somewhat from the modern variety, which show to a large extent the influence of the white man in the figures and the use of modern paint. In repainting the pole, those who did the work followed as closely as possible the original colors with the exception of the ground coat, which has been used to preserve the pole. The original blue-green color was obtained by the Indians from clay earth impregnated with soluble copper salts and the bright red from clay earth impregnated with iron oxides.

STRIKE STAND IS EXPLAINED

Local Longshoremen Explain Position to Mayor; Ask His Assistance

Representatives of the Victoria Riggers and Transport Workers to-day laid their position before Mayor David Leeming, explaining the reasons why they did not handle several ship cargoes which have come to Victoria during the last few days.

About two weeks ago the men visited the mayor and told him they were satisfied with the conditions under which they were working, but were afraid they might be drawn into the waterfront strike through the situation in Vancouver. At that time they asked the mayor if he would try to secure a conference between the Shipping Federation, representing the employers and the waterfront workers in Vancouver.

"They claim," with regard to the local situation which has now developed," the mayor stated, "that the stevedores of Victoria agreed verbally with officials of the local union that they would not bring any unfair vessels or cargo into the port of Victoria provided the local union men would agree to service the fair vessels."

BREACH CHARGED

"On July 10," the mayor quoted them as saying, "the union was notified by the stevedoring companies that St. Vernon City, an unfair vessel from the strike zone was coming to Victoria. The local longshoremen were asked to work it. On account of it being an unfair ship, the local union men refused to do the work. They were thereupon notified in a letter dated July 13 that the original agreement between the stevedoring companies and the union, dated August 26, 1934, was declared null and void as the stevedoring companies considered the refusal to work a direct breach of their joint agreement."

"These are the reasons advanced by the local union men for being on strike to-day," the mayor stated. They intimated to the mayor they would appreciate any efforts he could make towards healing the breach.

The situation was regarded as particularly unfortunate by Mayor Leeming who stated he had been advised 1,500,000 feet of lumber would be delivered to Ogden Point docks for loading between now and August 2.

BURNS CLUB ENJOYS TRIP

More than one hundred members and their friends of the Burns Club journeyed to the summer home of their president, W. A. Jameson, on the Sooke River, Wednesday, to enjoy one of the most successful outings in the history of the club.

The party left in buses from the Coach Lines Depot at 1.30 p.m., and returning, arrived back in the city at 9 o'clock, after a most successful outing. A large number of private cars made the trip in addition to the buses.

During the course of the afternoon's entertainment, Miss Lillian Grant and Ian Duncan delighted the picnicers with a number of selections on the bagpipes. Mrs. W. A. Jameson later led the merry-makers in community singing. Mr. Greaves won the afternoon's contest to take first prize, which consisted of a manicure set.

A programme of sports was run off by a committee consisting of W. B. Grant, J. A. Dewar and E. M. Wylie. Mrs. W. A. Jameson presented the prizes to the winners at the conclusion of the programme.

Before leaving for the city, Mr. Grant, on behalf of those present, expressed thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Jameson for their kindness in throwing their beautiful summer home and grounds open to the club members and their friends.

Mr. Jameson, in reply to the vote of thanks, stated that it had long been his wish to have the club hold a picnic there and if everyone had enjoyed himself and went away happy, he and Mrs. Jameson were amply repaid.

The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and "Will Ye No Come Back Again," and three hearty cheers for the host and hostess brought the happy event to a close.

AGED RESIDENT DIES IN HOSPITAL

Her husband and several nieces and nephews in San Francisco survive. The body is resting in Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel, where the funeral will be held at a date to be announced later.

Forest Receipts Of B.C. Higher

In First Six Months of Year Increase Is $75,000

Provincial government revenues through the forest branch increased by $75,000, about 8 per cent, in the first half of the year, according to figures given out here to-day. The total of $699,094 included $252,848 from timber licenses and berths, $925 from hand loggers' fees, $35,548 from timber leases, $127,722 from timber sales, $673,716 from scale and royalties and $4,325 from grazing fees. In the first six months of last year $623,588 was collected from these sources.

Increases were recorded in timber leases, sales and royalties, but the receipts from licenses were down about $44,000.

Fines of $5 each were imposed on Robert Mutch and Cedric Smith of the R.C.N.; Robert Daykin, 2938 Bridge Street, and Charles W. Reid, 1835 Hillside Avenue, when they pleaded guilty in the City Police Court this morning to a joint charge of taking part in a street fight on Douglas Street.

DAVID SPENCER LIMITED

Profit-taking On Wall Street With Close Irregular

Associated Press
New York, July 19.—Profit taking gave the stock market a tumble today, but serious casualties were few and a number of specialties emerged with gains.

Trading activity dwindled on the realising and transfers approximated 3,150,000 shares. The close was irregular.

Technical factors apparently contributed to the unsettlement, especially among issues that have recently been pushing ahead rapidly. The news picture was little changed.

Grains dipped and rallied, with wheat and corn finishing with a fairly steady tone. Cotton was inclined to ease. Bonds were mixed, with various secondary loans giving ground moderately. Foreign exchanges were quiet.

Smaller corporations were up more than three points and improvement was registered by Sears Roebuck, Johns-Manville, Case, Radio preferred, "B," Glidden and Motor Products.

On the other side of the ledger, with losses of fractions to a point or so were Standard Oil of New Jersey and California, Atlantic Refining, Amstar, Continental Oil, Socomey, U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, American Can, Du Pont, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Santa Fe. A decline of nearly five points was suffered by Columbia Gas preferred. "A" and corn products dropped three. Phillips Morris also yielded two.
